CALLED TO ORDER FOR 5TH BALLOT

Chairman Lodge Opened Today's Session of Convention at 10.25 O'Clock

Further Tests Between "Big Three," and Then if Necessary Turn to Others

OLISEUM, Chicago, June 12.—At 10.25 o'clock, Chairman Lodge called today's session of the republican national convention to order for the fifth ballot.

Launching into its fifth ballot today in search of a nominee for the presidency, the republican national convention was prepared to have some further tests of strength between Lowden, Wood and Johnson and then, if necessary, turn to others.

TAG DAY FOR THE BABIES

Lowell Guild Raises Money to Care for Health of Little Ones

Today is tag day of the baby hygiene department of the Lowell Guild. Its slogan is "Save the Babies" and it is hoped that at least $2500 will be raised to be expended in the work of protecting and caring for the health of the little ones.

The work of soliciting funds began at 6.20 o'clock this morning when Miss Ruth Pilling took up her station in Merrimack square in front of The Sun building and with box in hand began to gather in contributions. At first the square was almost deserted and a lone policeman seemed to be glad of Miss Pilling's company. A little later, though, a stream of pedestrians began to pass.

FINAL TRIBUTE IS PAID

Funeral of John J. Dalton Largely Attended by Friends and Relatives

Attended by representatives of every walk of life and characterized by solemn services, the funeral of John J. Dalton, the popular local singer, took place this morning from his late home, 275 Summer street, and at 10 o'clock a solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated at St. Peter's church.

The celebrant was Rev. Peter T. Linahan, director of St. Peter's choir in which the deceased had many times sung; Rev. Daniel J. Heffernan assisted as deacon and Rev. Francis L. Shea as sub-deacon. Seated in the sanctuary were clergymen from all parts of the city, including Rev. Daniel J. Keleher, Ph.D., pastor of St. Peter's; Rev. John P. Flynn, O.M.I., pastor of the Sacred Heart church; Rev. Lawrence F. Tighe, O.M.I., pastor of the Immaculate Conception church; Rev. Owen P. McQuaid, O.M.I., Rev. Eugene A. Dorgan, O.M.I.; Rev. Joseph A. Curtin and Rev. Henry Burns, O.M.I.

The large edifice was practically filled with friends and relatives of the deceased, giving evidence of the wide esteem and respect in which he was held.

St. Peter's choir, augmented by representatives of church choirs from various other parishes in which Mr. Dalton had sung, sang the Gregorian mass. At the gradual Thomas F. Boulger sang the Introit and at the offertory Miss Katherine V. Hennessy gave the "Pie Jesu" with deep feeling. Philip P. Haggerty sang the "Domine Jesu Christi" at the elevation and Commissioner James E. Donnelly sustained the solos of the litany. Walter F. Mack sang the De Profundis and the solos of the mass were sustained by Miss Mae Ryane. Miss Gertrude Quigley presided at the organ.

The bearers were Representative Thomas J. Corbett, Joseph Bateman, Eugene Crane, William O'Neil, Andrew A. McCarthy and Edward Costello. The ushers at the house and church were Frank Burns, Eugene Queenan, Christopher McSorley and Michael Carroll. William L. Gookin was in charge of funeral arrangements.

The floral offerings were many and beautiful. Burial was in the family lot in St. Patrick's cemetery where committal prayers were read by Rev. Dr. Keleher, Ph.D., assisted by Rev. Owen P. McQuaid, O.M.I., and Rev. Fr. Linahan. The funeral was under the general direction of Undertaker James W. McKenna & Son.

RESULT OF FIFTH BALLOT

CHICAGO, June 12.—There was no nomination on the fifth ballot of the republican convention. Wood lost 15 and one-half votes and Harding and Lowden both make gains.

Governor Lowden passed General Wood on the fifth ballot in the republican convention today and the prediction of the Wood managers that they would gain votes on the first ballot of the day was not fulfilled. Lowden ran up to 302 while Wood only touched 299. Johnson fell to 133½.

WILL NOT REMOVE WORLD WAR VETERANS

Included in the list of 41 employees of the city street department, whose discharges are requested by the civil service commission, Payson Dana, commissioner, are two world war veterans, each with one arm shot away, who Commissioner Murphy refuses to take from their jobs. They are John O'Keefe and Anthony Burns.

O'Keefe was a departmental employee previous to the war, who enlisted in the 11th Engineers and whose right arm was sacrificed at Cambrai. When he received his army discharge and was once again physically able to work Commissioner Murphy took him back into the department as a water and tool boy, which work he is now doing. Burns also gave an arm while in foreign service and he, too, will not be removed from his job as a night watchman, without a fight, says the commissioner.

NOTRE DAME HOLDS ANNUAL OUTING

The annual outing of students of Notre Dame academy was held today at the beautiful grounds of the Notre Dame sisters in Tyngsboro with several hundred students in attendance.

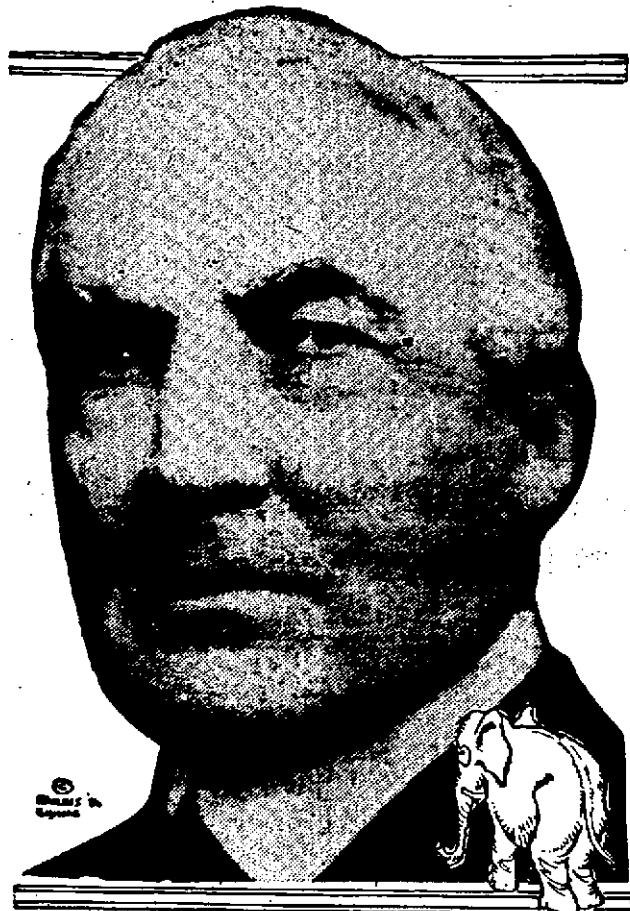

Ideal weather helped to make the affair a success from the time the young women left Lowell on electric this morning until it came time to make the homeward trip. The day's program included sports of all kinds, dancing, a basket luncheon and benediction at the grove. The outing is an annual event of the academy's commencement season. Graduation will take place next Thursday morning.

Various other parishes in which Mr. Dalton had sung, sang the Gregorian mass. At the gradual Thomas F. Boulger sang the Introit and at the offertory Miss Katherine V. Hennessy gave the "Pie Jesu" with deep feeling. Philip P. Haggerty sang the "Domine Jesu Christi" at the elevation and Commissioner James E. Donnelly sustained the solos of the litany. Walter F. CHICAGO, June 12. (By Associated Press)—Harding of Ohio, emerged today from the all-night conferences of republican chieftains as the man whom they expect to break the present deadlock on the presidential nomination.

On him they plan to concentrate their strength should the convention fail to break through the blockade established yesterday by four ballots.

Senator Harding participated in the conference. He also saw Senator Johnson.

More divorces have been granted Lowell couples so far in 1920 than during the entire year of 1919, according to records of William C. Dillingham, clerk of courts for Middlesex county.

So far this year 35 divorces have been granted Lowell couples, while last year during the entire 12 months there were only 20 divorces allowed in which Lowell couples were involved.

One of the reasons assigned for the increase is the fact that more divorces sessions of the superior court have been held this year than last. There will not be another session this year until November.

However, the ratio of divorces to marriages here in Lowell is still being kept at a low figure. While 20 Lowell couples were finding married life an unhappy state in 1919, 1362 couples were joined in wedlock for better or for worse, evidently not in the least deterred by the fate of their brother and sister matrimonial adventurers.

So far this year 522 couples have shown their lack of apprehension of the divorce court by filing intentions of marriage at the office of City Clerk Stephen Flynn. While these couples were anticipating wedded bliss, 35 other Lowell couples were applying for separation.

Here's the first picture of the opening of the 1920 G.O. P. convention in the historic Coliseum in Chicago. It was taken especially for The Sun. This unusually fine photograph was taken after the opening prayer and shows the vast crowd and the vast display of the red, white and blue with which the inside of the Coliseum was decorated. In the center background is the immense sounding board that looks like a square mouthed megaphone. It makes it possible for the strong-lunged orators to be heard in all parts of the great hall.

"Dr. J. P. True & Co.: Having heard that your medicine, Dr. True's Elixir, had been on the market for years and years, I thought possibly my ailments would be helped if I tried it. I have spent many dollars in trying to get a laxative which would agree with me—be pleasant to take and yet effective. At last I have it—Dr. True's Elixir. The Family Laxative and Worm Expeller.

For years I have had a poor appetite—any rich foods disagreed with me, and my headaches were frightful. I was troubled with tired feelings, nervous depression, weakness, spots before my eyes, bad breath, sleeplessness, irritability, dizziness and many other signs of sickness. I can now do a day's housework and not mind it, and your Dr. True's Elixir is always handy—I don't know of a better laxative—give it to my children with wonderful results—it relieves them of worms."

GILLETT LAUDS GOV. COOLIDGE

Places Name of Bay State
Governor in Nomination at
G. O. P. Convention

Patient as Lincoln, as Diplomatic as McKinley, With
Instinct of Roosevelt

CHICAGO, Ill., June 12.—Characterizing Governor Calvin Coolidge, of Massachusetts, as a man who believes that obedience to law is liberty and that this is a government of laws and not of men, Congressman Frederick H. Gillett, of Massachusetts, placed the name of the governor of his state in nomination for the presidency at the republican national convention here late yesterday afternoon.

Speaker Gillett told the republican delegates that the placing of such a man as Governor Coolidge in the presidential chair would clear the murky atmosphere of Washington like a bracing northern breeze. "He is as patient as Lincoln," Congressman Gillett said, "silent as Grant, diplomatic as McKinley, with the political instinct of Roosevelt."

Congressman Gillett's speech followed: "A year ago hardly a man outside of New England knew who was governor of Massachusetts. Today every man and woman in this vast audience, every lover of ordered liberty in the United States, knows and rejoices that the governor of Massachusetts is Calvin Coolidge."

"Opportunity—which knocks once at every man's door—came to him and found him waiting her summons, calm, courageous, resolute to do his duty though the heavens fall. And he did it so well, he met his great opportunity with so masterful a spirit as to send a thrill of admiration through every community in the land, and every honest man felt safer because there was such a governor as Coolidge."

"Isn't that the type of man you want for president today? Nominate him and you rally behind him that underlying devotion to our public security, that faith in our republican institutions, which when once aroused is overpowering and irresistible. He is supported by no special class or interest, but he attracts all those who believe that 'obedience to law is liberty,' who wish this to be a government of laws and not of men."

"Just to do his duty well has been his life's characteristic. None has been too small for his painstaking, conscientious care; none has arisen too large for his ability or his courage. I believe there is no burden or honor you can place on him of which he is not worthy."

"A boyhood on a lonely farm in Vermont bred him in industry, frugality, self-reliance. The granite hills seemed to have moulded his grave, indomitable character. Family self-denial gave

TREATMENT OF NEURASTHENIA

"Since the recent epidemic of influenza there has been an increasingly large number of cases of neurasthenia, a disease which is due to the exhaustion of the nervous system. The neurasthenic feels an abnormal irritability and there is a weakness of the nerve centers which regulate the organic functions. The memory fails, sleep is disturbed and the victim is faultfinding and suspicious, food does not agree with him and indigestion occurs frequently."

All the symptoms of neurasthenia indicate the need of a tonic that is free from alcohol and opiates. If the blood is built up nourishment is carried to the exhausted nerves and the general health is restored. An example of the success of this treatment is afforded by the experience of Mrs. Minnie Russell, who lives at No. 111 Chelsea street, Everett, Mass."

"I had a nervous breakdown following an attack of influenza," she says. "I lost a great deal of strength in a short time and my blood was very thin. I suffered from nervous splitting headaches and pains across my temples. I did not sleep well and when I did get to sleep would wake up with a start, as from nervousness. My appetite was poor and I was always cold. I worried a great deal over my condition and felt melancholy at times."

"It was my good fortune to hear about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I decided to try them. A few weeks after I started the treatment my strength began to return. My appetite improved and the headaches and other pains became gradually less severe and finally disappeared. My color is good now, my nerves are stronger and I feel better than I have in a long time."

Your own druggist can supply you with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills or they will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 60 cents per box. Write the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., for the free booklet, "Diseases of the Nervous System."—Adv.

him a college education at Amherst to broaden his native talents. Then he practised law. But his neighbors soon recognized the value of this quiet, sagacious man, and drafted him into the public service, and he glided from one useful station to another till he reached the highest office of our state. He is not showy or spectacular, but he never disappoints. The limelight attracts him less than the midnight oil. No audience ever fails to listen to his weighty sentences and when they go away they vote as he has talked. A poor man, living in the most frugal simplicity, he always had the confidence and support of the working people, yet rich and poor are to him alike equal before the law. He never crooks the pregnant hinges of the knee before pretentious power, nor stiffens his neck in pride before lowly weakness; but he holds the even tenor of his upright way, following his pole-star of duty. "Would it not be a restful change to see such a man in the White House today? His straight-forward personality would clear the murky atmosphere of Washington like a bracing northern breeze. We have been fed long enough on glittering rhetoric and extravagant novelties and rainbow-tinted dreams. We need an era of hard sense and old freedom. We need to re-invigorate the homely, orderly virtues which have made America great."

"Do you demand for your candidate a man of native ability? Take him who, an unknown country lawyer, won the confidence of the legislature in his first term. Do you want a profound political thinker? Take the author of that inspiring volume 'Have Faith in Massachusetts.' Do you want courage? Take the governor who just before an election sent the dauntless message: 'There is no right to strike against the public safety by anybody anywhere any time.' Do you want a winner? Take the man who has never concealed his conviction, who has never lowered his standards and who has never known defeat."

"I have not a word to say of depreciation for the splendid men whose names have been put in nomination. I can follow any one of these veterans with enthusiasm and confidence. But it is to the glory of the republican party that there constantly emerge from the ranks young men able to bear forward our banner to new glory. Such a man is our governor. He is patient as Lincoln, silent as Grant, diplomatic as McKinley, with the political instinct of Roosevelt. His character is as firm as the mountain of his native state. Like them his head is above the clouds and he stands unshaken amid the tumult and the storm."

"I nominate for president," Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts."

MILLS NOMINATES DR. BUTLER OF N. Y.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 12.—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, was placed in nomination for the presidency before the republican national convention yesterday by Ogden Mills of the New York delegation.

"Never since the election of Lincoln have problems of such vital importance to our national life demanded wise leadership and awaited solution," said Mr. Mills. "While not extensively to nominate a candidate, we shall before we separate have in reality chosen a president. We are not concerned with any man's place of residence, or his occupation, or his previous public affairs. We are concerned with his fitness alone. Fitness is availability."

"A mighty war has shaken the foundations of civilization, and left in its train economic, social and political problems, national and international, so fundamental and complex that the world today may be said to be groping in its search for light. This is more true of Europe than of the United States; but even our victorious, powerful and independent nation is not free from the heavy burdens of the day, as evidenced by widespread unrest, industrial strife, a high cost of living that bears with constantly increasing weight on every family, a staggering load of taxes, decreased productions and business hesitation, and a feeling of doubt and

"I feel it my duty to tell you what 'Fruit-a-tives' or Fruit Liver Tablets did for me."

I tried several kinds of physic for over three years; and, of course, while I took it every night my bowels would move; but as soon as I stopped taking physic, I would be constipated and would have Piles terribly.

I heard of 'Fruit-a-tives' and bought one box and took them. Now I am not troubled any more with Constipation and no more Piles. 'Fruit-a-tives' did for me what no other medicine ever did; they left no after-effects, and now I do not have to use physic.

lack of direct experience not only in respect of domestic questions but of international policy, and which has led some in despair to question our institutions themselves.

"Face to face with these problems, what manner of man must this new president be?"

"First and foremost, an American to the bone, not merely an American by birth or education, constructively-minded—a builder, not a destroyer. The next president will lead a powerful majority and must do more than expose abuses; he must reform them."

"He must be a tried executive, but he must be much more than an administrator. No man should be president today who has not a clean conception of our international relations and of our traditional foreign policy. Never again must the United States suffer as it has in the last 19 months from unbalanced and inexperienced leadership."

"Finally, he cannot be sectional, but must be national in his antecedents and interests. He cannot belong to any one part of the country, but must know and be known to all."

"Of all the distinguished names presented to you for your consideration there is only one candidate who satisfactorily meets all of these tests."

"Nicholas Murray Butler does: I know no man who is more constructively minded than Dr. Butler. In many of our party platforms, with which you are familiar, he has invariably contributed the note of construction and progress in definite and concrete language. This quality has been recognized by every president since Harrison with the exception of Cleveland and Wilson. He is a tried and proved executive. No man is better qualified by training and experience to give that wise leadership that is so necessary to the re-establishment of a sound, consistent American foreign policy. It may fairly be said that he is as well known in the states of California and Washington as in the states of New York and New Jersey."

"A man of vision but not a visionary; a thinker who does not make thoughts his master; an idealist who does not make dreams his aims; a man whose ambition is deeds, not words, and who has realized that ambition in practice; a believer first and last in his country and its institutions. Nicholas Murray Butler is a truly representative American, worthy of high esteem in which he is held by his countrymen and of high position to which he aspires. With a full realization of the solemn responsibility, the state of New York presents to your earnest consideration the name of Nicholas Murray Butler as the candidate of the republican party for the presidency of the United States."

TO FEEL FIT TO WORK

you must keep your stomach well, your liver active, your bowels regular and blood pure.

If you get up in the morning tired; if you get exhausted with the slightest exertion—you can depend upon it that your liver is torpid and needs waking up. A few doses of SEVEN BARKS, nature's great remedy, will "wake up" that lazy liver, and make you feel like new.

If your liver has been overworked, it would cause your whole system to fill up with acids and poisons that would make you feel weak, tired out and sick. You can easily remove the acids and poisons from your system by taking from 10 to 20 drops of SEVEN BARKS in a little water after meals. It will keep your bowels moving naturally every day, cleanse your system thoroughly, eliminate undigested food, and bring you back to active and normal health again.

SEVEN BARKS is nature's remedy, made from the extracts of roots and herbs and has stood the test for many, many years, and will certainly give you a feeling of new life and vigor. To feel fresh and fit for your daily duties, you must keep your stomach and liver active and bowels regular.

To get and keep well ask your druggist for SEVEN BARKS. If he is out of it, he will get it for you. Accept no substitute. Price 60 cents.—Adv.

DOWNWARD TURN IN PRICE RECORD

Bradstreet's today says: "As indicated a month ago in these columns, the slight rise in prices indicated by Bradstreet's index number as of May 1 over April 1 was more apparent than real, reflecting effects on prices of the congestion of all freight growing out of the outlay railroad strike early in April, but not entirely the improvement in conditions later in the month."

"It was also stated that the May 1 prices did not and could not reflect the effect on prices of the quieting in trade noted in the early part of last month, but this exception does not hold good of the June 1 number given herewith, which shows the largest recession noted in any month except January, 1919, and with that exception the largest decline noted in any month, or for that matter any full year, since the index number was first compiled. Two advances in excess of this amount occurred, one in July, 1919, and another

"Nine out of 13 groups of prices entering into the index number declined during May, textiles leading in the volume of decrease. Four groups advanced, but these showed only slight gains, drugs, breadstuffs, building materials and coal and coke coming in order of importance of advances."

HELD WHIST PARTY AND POP CONCERT

Highland hall in Branch street was yesterday the scene of a pretty gathering, the occasion being a whist party in the afternoon, followed by a pop concert and general dancing in the evening, the affair being given under the auspices of the Boosters' club of the Sons and Daughters of Liberty. There was a large attendance and all present enjoyed the program immensely.

The whist was under the direction of Miss Ethel Douglas and the prize winners were Mrs. Rhodes, Mrs. L. A. Brown, Mrs. Ives and Mrs. Gertrude White. At the close of the whist, prizes were served by the following: Laura Lapointe, Laura Gourley, Ivy Noyes, May Davis, Agnes Davis, Frances Plaislead, Edna Southam, May Richardson and Margaret Dow.

Those who took part in the pop concert in the evening were Arabelle Whitcomb, Master Stuart Davis, Eleanor Pitts, C. Frederick Porter, Wilbur Roberts and the Mandolin club composed of the following: Yolande Dewell and Dorothy and Rachel Dobbins. The committee in charge of the affair was as follows: William Douglas, Ethel Douglas, Ethel Whitney, Mabel F. Lapointe, Guy Whitney, Charles J. White, Arthur Jamieson, Harold Young, Chester Hibbs, Harold Wilkins and Erroll Honey.

Member of the Associated Press

The Associated Press is exclusively entitled to the use for republication of all news dispatches credited to it or not otherwise credited in this paper and also the local news published herein.

The platform committee of the republican national convention undertook to please everybody and the result of its labors doesn't appear to be satisfactory to anybody.

Hooray! A West Virginia concern has been fined $35,000 for sugar profiteering. Perhaps, though, we had better save our hurrahs until we learn that the fine has been paid.

Mayor Thompson has many important items on his list of municipal business to be transacted, but not the least of these is the selection of the members of Lowell's charter commission, which must be accomplished before July 1.

Some people who have read the news from Chicago will be inclined to ask why the big Illinois Steel company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, should give a luncheon to 1000 delegates, half as many alternates and an indefinite number of political managers of the republican national convention. The search for an answer need not be a long one.

The services of Kosciuszko and Pulaski to America can never be forgotten, neither should the fact be allowed to slip from mind that Governor Coolidge has designated Sunday, June 13, as "Polish liberty bond day." Money paid now for a Polish bond will be an investment in behalf of a nation that is battling for its freedom and independence from Bolshevik rule.

An official in charge of a flying squadron of the department of justice which is operating against profiteers in New York City, says that the campaign is to continue until "prices of food, clothing, fuel, and feed for livestock are brought to more normal levels." The flying squadrons of the whole country have thus far captured 107 profiteers. At this rate how long will it take them to bring prices down to "a more normal level?"

Secretary of State Colby does not place such a high valuation upon the content and diction of Senator Lodge's keynote address as some of the editors of republican newspapers are doing. Speaking at the commencement exercises of Elmira, N. Y., college, from which his mother graduated in 1864, he said some of the essays of members of the graduating class of which his mother was a member "would make more profitable reading than the remarks of the temporary chairman of the republican national convention." Mr. Colby is not the first person to detect something schoolboyish in the literary efforts of the senior Massachusetts senator.

INDICTMENTS QUASHED

If the head of the American Woolen company is a profiteer, there is no law on the statute books sufficiently clear to reach him. The point turns on the decision of the court that woolen cloth is not wearing apparel and, sure enough, it isn't; but if the price of cloth is unreasonable so will be wearing apparel, just as dear flour makes high priced bread. But there was no proof offered that the Woolen company is charging unreasonable prices for its cloth. Only an expert inquiry could decide that question.

CANCELLING DEBTS

It seems that with a sympathetic administration at Washington next year, a strong agitation will be started for the cancellation of the debts owed to the United States by England, France and Italy on the ground that forced payment would produce an economic collapse in Europe which would make our loans uncollectable and destroy our foreign markets.

Another move is to pay our loans if at all with German bonds. Frank Simonds and other writers primed for the purpose, are urging cancellation of our loans to Europe on the allegation that payment will be followed by indirect loss more serious than the amount of the loans. That is part of the game to secure cancellation. If Hoover were elected president he would undoubtedly favor cancellation. That is one reason why he is not wanted.

THE VOCATIONAL SCHOOL

If the city cannot purchase new quarters for the Vocational school, it might solve the problem by leasing the necessary space in some factory building until such times as the high school annex will be available. It is understood that after the new high school shall have been completed, the annex will be vacated so that it can be turned over to the Vocational school. That happy day, however, is far in the future.

The Vocational departments housed in the old Mann school are working under serious handicap. It is no wonder that officials of the state board of education complain and no wonder that Mr. Fisher is impatient. But better days are coming.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM

There is some criticism of the Federal Reserve banks because they wisely have adopted the policy of checking wild speculation which had been attaining extraordinary proportions. In reference to this policy and to rumors arising from it, the following statement by Frank Kell, director of the Federal Reserve bank of Dallas, Texas, is of interest:

"I am thoroughly convinced that there is no panic in sight, nor any reason for undue alarm. The finances of the country at present are ample for present business needs. But I am also convinced that it is seriously important that the current funds be conserved to the utmost possible degree and that every speculative tendency be discouraged."

"We occupy a strong position among the governments of the world."

There is no cause for undue alarm if conservative business methods be followed.

THE REAL RULERS

People sometimes wonder as to the exact meaning of the term "invisible government." Candor compels the admission that it is an exceedingly elusive article, although its existence, and the results of such existence, are real enough. Certain happenings at Chicago this week shed interesting light on the subject.

According to the New York World, there have been gathered together in the convention city half a score of men from different parts of the country whose purpose it has been to influence and direct the course of the republican party in making its platform and selecting candidates for the presidency.

These men, according to the World, represent wealth that, if used for the purpose, could cancel overnight the immense war debt, and all other debts, of the United States.

None of these men has any standing before the country as a statesman, politician, party leader or publicist. If the name of the member of the party from Boston were printed, probably not one person in ten thousand in the state would be able to place the individual mentioned. Not one of the gentlemen is a delegate to or has any official connection with the convention.

Yet these men are the real power behind the throne in the republican party. They are the centre and initial source of the activities that spread out and, through agents and beneficiaries big and little, to a large extent dictate and control the policies of the party.

RAILROAD ACCIDENTS

The railroad accident this week near Schenectady, N. Y., in which one Massachusetts man was killed and several people of the state were injured, appears to have been due to a cause that has been responsible for a number of similar disasters lately.

In this particular accident an express train running at high speed crashed into the rear end of a stalled train ahead of it. According to the reports of investigators, the engineer of the express deliberately ran past a distance and a home signal that were "set against" him, and disregarded the warning of a red lantern waved by the rear brakeman who had been sent out to protect the train ahead. It would appear that the engineer was asleep or strangely inattentive to duty.

When an engineer comes to a distance signal that is "set against" him he is supposed to slow down his locomotive and proceed with caution until the home signal is reached. If the home signal is set at danger the rules require that the train shall be brought to a complete standstill and remain so until the signal indicates a clear right of way in the block ahead. When confronted with incidents such as described, railway operatives are very likely to lay the blame to officials of the roads "higher up" who, they assert, not only wink at violations of the rules forbidding running past danger signals, but also to a degree encourage such practices by favoring men who are able to bring their trains into terminals on time without much regard as to the way in which they get them there.

Railroad officials deny this allegation and say that they disapprove of running past danger signals and do all they can to prevent the practice. In the case of the Schenectady wreck, the engineer of the express train is dead. Otherwise he might have an interesting story to tell.

On some roads a mechanical device has been tried out with more or less success that automatically stops a train before it can enter a block in which another train is already present. Perhaps it is to the adoption of this or some similar device that travelers will have to look for greater safety in connection with journeys by rail. What is needed is some mechanical device to serve as a check on the erratic tendencies of the human element.

THE G. O. P. PLATFORM

Never in its history did the republican party adopt a platform so academic and insipid as that just put forth with great travail at Chicago. There is not in the entire document a single sentence that has the ring of patriotic earnestness. In no instance does the language used rise above the lame, the timid, the monotonous, and the super-cautious tone characteristic of the spirit of neutrality in action between warring elements.

First of all the compromise on the League of Nations is the refuge of political expediency, admittedly resorted to in order to appease elements that threatened disruption. Thus, so far as this issue is concerned, the plank adopted means nothing. It has platitudinous statements about "an agreement among the nations to preserve the peace of the world," while holding to the policies of Washington and Monroe, and at the same time, "performing our duties to civilization without surrendering the right of the American people to exercise its judgment and power in favor of justice and peace."

That is all very fine. It served the purpose which was to pacify the irreconcilable enemies of the League of Nations such as Borah and Johnson.

In the main the platform is non-committal to any policy on which there can be a difference of opinion, unless in dealing with the present administration. In charging the government with unpreparedness for war and equal unpreparedness for peace, the republican platform goes so far as to slander our army and navy by making this false statement:

"Had not our associates protected us, both on land and sea, during the final 12 months of our participation, and furnished us to the very day of the armistice with munitions, planes and artillery, this failure would have been punished with disaster."

Had not the United States supplied the allies with ammunition and materials of all kinds both before we entered the war and after, they could not have resisted the power of Germany to such a great extent as they did; and but for the aid of our army and navy, there is little room for doubt that the allies would have lost the war.

We are not a militaristic nation and the government was not justified in making warlike preparations while there was no certainty that war would be declared. This charge in the republican platform is a slander upon the millions of brave men who fought on land and sea and who with ever memorable energy brought victory to the allied cause.

Still wobbling under the disaster of 1912 and the lack of aggressive leadership, the party has lost its courage and its erstwhile bold adherence to principle. Note the pussyfoot manner in which it deals with such questions as the tariff, labor and industry, immigration and commerce. There is not a word of the merchant marine. That was undoubtedly omitted lest reference to it might offend Great Britain or disturb our foreign relations. All questions in controversy were either evaded or the stand taken on them was absolutely neutral. The republican might have written their platform in the words: "We're out long enough; stop squabbling and join in helping us to drive out the democrats."

SEEN AND HEARD

How did you like yesterday's suggestion and sample of what July and August will bring?

Rather appropriate is Chicago's 92 degree temperature with a red hot G. O. P. convention in session.

Diving space was at a premium in the old swimming hole yesterday almost as soon as school was over.

There is a prevailing opinion that Germany wouldn't be quite so hasty if she had it to do over again.

A Hungarian woman predicts that our next president will be bald. Well, in this country we have no hair apparent.

A Fine Opportunity

A farmer and his fair young cousin from the city were going around the farm together, and the farmer was rapidly falling beneath the spell of the town maiden's eyes. "Now, that's a pretty scene," he said, pausing beside the fence of a paddock in which a cow and a calf were rubbing noses together. "The sight of it makes me want to do the same." "Well, go on," said the girl placidly. "It's your cow, you know."

Seeing Cuba

"So you have just returned from Cuba?"

"Yes," replied the bibulous American.

"Tell me about it."

"You'll have to ask somebody else."

"Why so?"

"I parked my left foot on a brass rail and my elbow on a mahogany counter as soon as I got there. To the best of my knowledge I kept that attitude until my steamer sailed."

From a Sure Source

During a court case a solicitor was examining a witness and happened to ask him about the character of a deceased man who was mentioned.

To the amazement of the court the witness replied: "He was a man without blame, beloved and respected by all, pure in all his thoughts, and"

"How did you learn that?" demanded the judge in surprise.

"I read it on his tombstone, your honor," was the disconcerting reply.

The Populist Party

A reader of this column submits the following question: What was the populist party? When was it started?

Answer—The populist party was an organization which grew out of the movements previously started by the Grangers and Farmers' Alliance. Its aim was the general social development of country people. The party was organized at Cincinnati in May 1891. Its platform included a demand for free coinage of silver, abolition of national banking system, national ownership of public communication and transportation means, popular election of United States senators, adoption of initiative and referendum and prohibition of alien ownership of land.

"Have a Heart"

If you answer the smile of the baby across the aisle on the street car—That's having a heart. If you stoop and stroke the kitten that runs up to you on the street—That's having a heart. If you guide the blind man across the crowded corner by the arm—That's having a heart. You will live—and prosper probably—if you do none of these three things, or similar little kindnesses. But you won't be living a free and natural life, a life that knows real love and real kindness. The world today is too crowded with the other kind of men—those who return the smile of a child with a blank stare or a scowl; those who would kick the kitten; those who look the other way when they see a blind man in need of assistance. Let those who are of that stripe change, and a warm sunshine of genuine love will flood the world. There can be no wars then, no prejudices, no fights.

The Watcher

By Margaret Widdemer.
She always loved to watch for us. Anxious if we were late. In winter by the window. In summer by the gate.

And though we mocked her tenderly. Who had such foolish care. The long way home would seem more safe. Because she waited there.

Her thoughts were all so full of us. She never could forget! And so I think that where she is She must be watching yet.

Waiting till we come home to her. Anxious if we are late— Watching from Heaven's window. Leaning from Heaven's gate.

SPECIAL TOWN

MEETING WARRANT

At a meeting of the finance committee for the town of Billerica recommendations were prepared relative to the warrant, which will be brought to the attention of the voters at the special town meeting, which will be held June 21.

The warrant will contain 19 articles, which were thoroughly discussed at the meeting of the finance committee. The appropriation of $13,000 for additions to the pumping station will be recommended. The sum of $5000 for the purchase of the old Hose school and $5000 to increase the salaries of the teachers and to meet the increased cost of transportation of pupils will also be recommended. The committee will not favor Sunday baseball, but will recommend the appropriation of $5000 for snow work during the past winter.

No action was taken at the meeting on the proposed memorial for veterans of the world war as the committee did not have its report ready.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

John J. Dalton's death has stilled forever the splendid voice that was his and which many hundreds of Lowell people have heard in generous measure before the footlights, at banquets, at recitals and intoning the impressive music of the requiem. His passing recalls the death of his loyal friend, Ed Shea, several years ago, at whose bedside John Dalton had maintained a ceaseless vigil. Music hath charms, 'tis true, and the lamented Shea and Dalton possessed the happy faculty of bleeding lilting melodies with prosaic classics into many an evening of delight. John Dalton was ever courteous, affable, honorable, the friend of many, a man among men and without an evil or ungenerous thought. It is difficult to say in which songs he excelled, but I recall his effort on one occasion of the Twentieth Century Bachelor club's events, when his friend, Ed Shea, lay cold in death and John was called upon to take part in the program of the evening. Repressing the unbidden tear, struggling with the innermost emotions that tugged at his heart-strings, he sang sweetly and with deep pathos "A Perfect Day." Not one in the audience but knew that the song had much import for the singer that evening, and his effort was vastly more of a task than any of his previous offerings. His repertoire was almost inexhaustible, running from the happy melodies of Ireland's Tom Moore or of Balfe, which had much favor with him, to the classics of the noted composers, sung with exquisite enunciation, and the touching requiem hymns of Leybuck and others, which he gave feelingly and with deep devotion. "Tis hard, indeed, to realize that the sound of his voice is stilled." As he fares forth to the great beyond, we can join with Moore and say:

"All that's bright must fade;
The brightest still the dearest.
All that's sweet was made
But to be lost when sweetest."

In reply to several inquiries relative to the impersonation of Mayor Lawrence in the historical pageant the official who received President Jackson, I may say that for some reason, perhaps on account of his family, Mayor Lawrence was brought on the scene at the expense of historical accuracy. President Jackson visited Lowell in 1833, while Lowell was yet a town, and according to Cowley's history, he was accompanied by Vice President Martin Van Buren, Judge Woodbury and other members of the cabinet. The date was June 26. An address of welcome was made by Joshua Swan, chairman of the board of selectmen, and the party then passed through the principal streets where triumphal arches had been erected and decorated with flags and flowers. Lowell was incorporated as a city in 1836 and Eliza Bartlett was the first mayor. He served two years and in 1835 was succeeded by Luther Lawrence. The report in a local paper that the personage represented as escorting President Jackson was the mayor of Lawrence was without foundation.

The only feature missing from the Sells-Floto circus program was the time-honored series of Roman chariot races, the running races—usually with one horse, without a rider—and other matches around the track under the "big top." The tent was too narrow to permit them, but we believe there was more than one grown-up in the crowd who regretted their absence more than a little. Even though it was always easy to dope out beforehand which horse or horses would win, the races, nevertheless, were exciting and made a splendid finale. Maybe the larger circus which pays us a visit later in the month will have this feature on the program and if so, it will find as much popularity as ever. Another innovation brought by Sells-Floto was in the type of after-show announced. Usually it includes a little bit of this and less of that, but Thursday's circus announced an up-to-date and complete musical comedy for 25 cents and several hundred lingered to see it.

Geologists have a theory that the Merrimack river once made its way to the sea by way of the bed of the Concord river, the basin of the Mystic lakes and the Mystic river. In the days when the earth was still shimmering and nature reset her scenes at more or less frequent intervals, something happened to alter the course of the old stream. What that something was no one attempts to say exactly, although there are theories regarding this also. One of them is that there was an earth upheaval somewhere that threw a dam across the former bed of the waterway. Another theory ascribes the formation of a big ice jam that was slow in melting as the cause of the change. Whatever happened, so the geologists claim, the Merrimack decided to slide along down past the sites where Lawrence, Haverhill and Newburyport are now located instead of following its old path. Occasionally some bits of evidence turn up that seem to furnish at least partial corroboration of this theory. At the site on Middle street where the New Hampshire hotel is a fine built workmen are now excavating through material that bears indications that it once formed the bed of a big, slow-moving, inklike river. The material being excavated is alluvial sand and sandy clay, and there is an entire absence of gravel and boulders such as were carried along by the glacial drift. There are also visible on close examination lines of stratification that indicate that the earth in the vicinity was laid down in successive deposits at the bottom of a river.

SERVICE TIED UP

DESERTS KEYBOARD

FOR WASHBOARD

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 12.—From Do-re-mi and the C scale to Rubadub-dub. Yea, verily, from keyboard to washboard!

Prof. Will Spahr, for many years a teacher of music, both piano and vocal, has followed the advice of the government experts, who say that what the nation needs is more productive and less non-productive labor. Spahr, doing his bit to help the nation's employment problem, has given up teaching the younger generation how to play and has turned to the washboard as the instrument on which he will play his role through the reconstruction period. In other words, he's taking in washing, doing laundry, helping the world keep clean!

Harmony, Too
Incidentally, he says, he finds that the market for his services has increased, that the pay is better and that a lot of harmony as well as water can be wrung out of linen. While the national conference on education, in Washington, was exploring the fact that teachers, tutors and educators in all lines are face to face with hardships because of low pay, Prof. Spahr, up to his elbows in soapsuds, was demonstrating that they can make a good living in other lines if they have to.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

THE MYSTERY SOLVED

It was a great mystery about Wally Woodchuck getting upstairs from the kitchen without anyone seeing him, and a still greater mystery how he got the children up there and into their trundle beds! When everyone knew he had put them out that very day.

"WALLY," THREATENED TINGALING, "I'M ASHAMED OF YOU."

But while Tingaling and the twins stood watching Wally rocking the babies and singing to them in his electric-sweeper voice, who should come rushing upstairs but the wise old Magical Mashroom. He had been keeping guard outside. "Oh, he, so there he is!" he exclaimed, pointing to Wally. "I'm going to tell on him. He made a new back door-way out of the kitchen while you were waiting in the parlor for your tea, hunted up his lost babies, and then rushed home again with them. He dug a hole in the roof of his bedroom and dropped them in!" The Mashroom talked so fast he was all out of breath.

Tingaling, the fairy landlord, jingled his bells meaningly, and Wally shivered.

Wally had no answer for this. "Well," he said finally, "the birds drop their babies out of the nest to teach them to fly, don't they? And I read in the 'Log Hollow Bugle' that the people of Timbuc-Zanziscar throw their children into the water to teach 'em to swim, so I thought I'd try the same thing and—"

"You're a queer 'un," said Tingaling. "And you're quite sure it wasn't because you wanted all the food for yourself?"

Wally nodded that he was—well, pretty sure!

"All right!" said the fairy, turning away. "Don't do it again, and I'll let you off this time. Come on, kiddoes!"

MEXICO PLANS TO SEND

MISSION TO U. S.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Reports have reached the state department through unofficial channels that the New Mexican government is about to send to the United States a mission to discuss the relations between the two countries in an entirely informal way. Miguel Corcorran, the dean of Mexican diplomats, and Fernando Iglesias Calderon, a historian of note, are mentioned as heading the mission.

The mission will not have plenary powers, but it is the desire of the Mexican government, according to reports, that it determine a basis for the adjustment of all the differences between the two countries.

A regular meeting of Local 133, International Association of Machinists, was held last evening with President Parker F. Murphy in the chair. Routine business was transacted and President Murphy and Bartholomew Swift were elected delegates to the grand lodge convention, which will be held at Rochester, N. Y., the first week of September.

DRACUT NEWS

Measles Prevalent — Farm Help Scarce — Other Items

Because of a rather extensive epidemic of measles in the town of Dracut some of the public entertainments in which children were to take part have been postponed. For the past few weeks the disease has spread steadily among the school children, but Dr. Mason D. Bryant, who has tended to the majority of cases, states that it has been so mild that in many instances, the parents did not detect it before contagion was diffused among the companions of their children. Now, however, conditions seem to be in check and the postponement of public gatherings is a precautionary measure. There are about twenty cases of measles centering around Dracut Center.

Rev. Jenkinson of the Dracut Center church had planned elaborate exercises in the church on Sunday in which the kindergarten and primary grades of the school were to participate, but they have been postponed until the last Sunday in June, the 27th.

A girl about age and fair which was to be held within a few days was also postponed.

In the Sunday services in the Center church music will be by the quartet composed of Miss Roth, Mrs. Peabody, Mr. Orrell, and Mr. Sewall. "Tollers in the Field of Time" will be the theme of the sermon by Rev. Egbert Jenkinson.

Nine girls and six boys will receive their first communion on June 19 in St. Mary's church in Collinsville. The class has been receiving instruction for the past few weeks. Rev. Fr. Michael Gilbride will officiate.

Owing to the rain last Sunday there were not many campers at Lakeview to attend the first summer service of the Catholic chapel, but Fr. Gilbride expects a good attendance when the good weather brings the crowd to the lake. The chapel is over the dining room next to the dance hall.

Graduation Exercises
The graduation exercises of the Dracut Center and Collinsville grammar schools will be held on Friday evening June 18 and those of the Kenwood and Parker Avenue on the afternoon of the same day. Capt. W. MacBrayne, now of Battery B, this city, will speak to the graduates of the Dracut Center school, and Charles Randall, superintendent of the schools of the town, will make short addresses at the other schools.

Last week Miss Edith Merchant, supervisor of vocational training, directed an exhibit of manual training in the schools. The handicraft of the pupils was on exhibition during an afternoon and evening and the schools were well attended.

Plan Lawn Party
The Ladies Aid society of the Dracut Center church is making arrangements for a lawn party on next Wednesday evening on the church grounds. The lawn will be decorated with electric lights and lanterns and the affair will be featured by many entertaining events. Mr. Harry Fox and Mrs. Arthur Manning have general charge. Mrs. James Walsh will direct the candy table, Mrs. Sam Pillsbury the food table, Mr. Alton Bryant the ice cream table, Mrs. Harry Fox the frankfort and rolls table and Mr. Alfred Fox the tonic table. The directors will try to secure the Middlesex County Training School band for the occasion.

At a meeting of the society last Wednesday afternoon the members sold four quilts which will be sold later.

"The Miracle Battery"
George Mozley, owner of the candy department of D. L. Page company, who went overseas with Battery F, now Battery B, from this city will soon have his book "The Miracle Battery" completed and ready for the public. Mr. Mozley's keen insight into human nature, his personal experience in the trenches and in the training camp will make his story of the local battery one of widespread interest. Since the members of that unit are well known to Lowell people, the pleasing sidelights thrown upon its activity on foreign soil will rekindle many fond memories.

Corn Rotten Warning
Although the U. S. department of agriculture had posted notices to the effect that Lowell and all its surrounding towns were infested with the European corn borer this year the farmers in Dracut have experienced little difficulty from that source. The notices announced the following plants as subject to restriction on account of the borer: corn and brown corns, celery, green beans in the pod, beets, with tops, spinach, rhubarb and rye straw, oat flowers or entire plants of chrysanthemums, aster, cosmos, zinnia, hollyhock and cut flowers or entire plants of gladioli and dahlias. Since no trouble has been experienced so far the farmers expect none in the future as the borer's season for destruction has passed.

Farm Help Scarce
Farmwork is practically at a standstill, both because the planting season is nearly passed and on account of the scarcity of labor. Conversation with the farmers of Dracut will re-

Dog Killing Order
The selection of the town have issued warrants to the police officers to kill all unlicensed dogs and have given notice that failure or neglect of any owner or keeper of a dog to license it immediately will be dealt with accordingly. As the last date for the licensing of dogs has long since expired the notice is considered final.

SOCIAL AND DANCE
A social and dance was held last evening in Thomas Talbot hall, North Billerica, under the auspices of the S. C. club and the affair was a success in every way. In the early part of the evening entertainment numbers were given and later general dancing was started and continued till a seasonable hour. Those who figured in the program were Ambrose Ready, J. O'Regan, Matthew Shay, Edward Matthews, James Jones and others. Those responsible for the success of the party were as follows: Thomas J. Knight, general manager; G. Kenney, assistant; W. Shessey, treasurer; J. O'Brien, floor director; J. Gauran, chief aid; J. Noonan, J. Connor, A. Constantineau, L. Sawyer, B. Johnson, A. Ready, W. Hardman, B. Taylor, A. Wristley, A. Parafidis and N. Tessier.

LEGAL NOTICES

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Middlesex:
Respectfully I, Ethel M. Fornes, do hereby certify that she was lawfully married to Louis E. Fornes, now of Memphis, County of Shelby, and State of Tennessee, at Waltham, Massachusetts, on the sixth day of October, A.D. 1910, and thereafter lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit, at Waltham, Middlesex County, Massachusetts; that your libellant has always been faithful to her marriage vows and obligations, but the said Louis E. Fornes being wholly irresponsible, set out in the County of Stark, and State of Ohio, on or about January 5th, A.D. 1918, did utterly desert your libellant and such utter desertion has continued for more than three consecutive years, last prior to the filing of this libel.

That the following child has been born in this marriage, Thelma H. Fornes, born July 21st, 1919.
That your libellant has lived in this Commonwealth for a period of more than three years, next prior to the filing of this libel.

Therefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Louis E. Fornes, and that suitable orders may be made relative to the support, care and custody of said minor child.

Dated this first day of June, A.D. 1920.
ETHEL M. FORNES.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts—Middlesex, ss. Superior Court.
June 8, A.D. 1920.
Upon the foregoing libel it is ordered that the libellant notify the libellee to appear before our Justices of said County, at Cambridge, in said County, on the first Monday of July next, by causing an attested copy of said libel and of the order thereon, to be published in the Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, in the County of Middlesex, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said last mentioned day, and that an attested copy of said libel and order thereon be registered in the office of the clerk of the libellee, and that the libellee, if he may then and there shall cause to be served, why the prayer in said libel set forth should not be granted.

WM. C. DILLINGHAM, Clerk.
A true copy of the libel and of the order thereon.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts—Middlesex, ss. Probate Court.
To the heirs-at-law, next of kin, creditors, and all other persons interested in the estate of Harold B. Prouty, late of Lowell, in said County, deceased, intestate.

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court to grant a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased, to Florie B. Prouty, late of Lowell, in said County, deceased, intestate.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Cambridge, in said County, on Wednesday, on the twenty-ninth day of June, A.D. 1920, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And the petitioner hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks in the Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, the last publication to be one day at least before the day of said Probate Court.

Witness, George F. Lavett, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this eleventh day of June in the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty.

P. M. DUFFY, Register.

Max Jacob Cohen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Cohen of 295 Broadway, and Allen Gerson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Gerson of 20 Washington Street, will graduate with degrees of bachelors of law next Wednesday from the Boston University school of law.

Through an oversight yesterday, the name of Marion Garvey was omitted in the list of senior captains of the girl officers of the Lowell high school for the coming year, 1920-21. Miss Garvey won her rank after maintaining high marks throughout the year and in the final test examination a short while ago.

Articles of clothing and exhibits of military and embroidery, taken from the public exhibition at the Girls' Community club, this afternoon were attractively arranged on the third floor of the Chalfoux store and caused considerable favorable comment. This work has been done by the club girls in classes which have been in operation since last October.

Five Lowell men received degrees from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at the annual commencement exercises held yesterday. Grant K. French, Edmund C. Sullivan and Heland J. Green were graduated from the civil engineering course with the degrees of bachelor of science and Malcolm R. McKinley and William H. Macleod were awarded similar degrees in engineering administration.

A shower in honor of Miss Lillian Smith was held Thursday evening at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Mary A. Pearson, 873 Bridge street. Miss Smith, who is to become the bride of Mr. Thomas Kenney, was the recipient of many valuable gifts, among them being a purse of gold from her co-workers of the Saco-Lowell shops. An enjoyable program of entertainment was carried out and included a solo by Miss Edna Hunt. Miss Vera Smith was accompanist of the evening. Refreshments were served.

The passenger rate by airplane between London and Paris is $60, and a charge of 50 cents a pound is made for freight.

SALE OF PERCY PARKER PROPERTY

DUMMER STREET, LOWELL

THE WELL LOCATED INVESTMENT PROPERTY OF PERCY AND ANNIE G. PARKER, CONSISTING OF EIGHT BUILDINGS AND ABOUT 2250 SQUARE FEET OF LAND, SITUATED AND DESCRIBED AS FOLLOWS: A ONE AND A HALF STORY DWELLING AND STORE AT NO. 70 DUMMER STREET; A FOUR-TEASEMENT BLOCK AT NO. 80 DUMMER STREET; A TWO-TEASEMENT HOUSE AT NOS. 9-11 IN THE REAR OF NO. 80 DUMMER STREET; A COTTAGE HOUSE AT NO. 86 DUMMER STREET; A COTTAGE HOUSE, NO. 13 IN THE REAR OF NO. 86 DUMMER STREET; A TWO-TEASEMENT HOUSE AND STORE AT NOS. 90-92 DUMMER STREET; A FOUR-TEASEMENT BLOCK, AT NOS. 9-11 IN THE REAR OF NOS. 90-92 DUMMER STREET, AND A TWO-TEASEMENT BLOCK AT NOS. 102 AND 110 DUMMER STREET. PLEDGED IN ONE LOT, TO THE HIGHEST BONA FIDE BIDDER, AT UNRESTRICTED AND ABSOLUTE PUBLIC SALE, ON THE PREMISES, REGARDLESS OF ANY CONDITION OF THE WEATHER, ON FRIDAY, THE 18TH DAY OF JUNE, 1920, AT FOUR O'CLOCK P. M.

No. 70 Dummer street, is a one and one-half story structure consisting of a store and a four-room tenement in very good order, and rented to the one tenant, who pays $14 per month or $156 per year; the building has gas, city water, etc.

At No. 80 Dummer street is a block of four tenements, five rooms to each, and toilets, city water, etc. In the rear of No. 50, at Nos. 9-11 is a two-tenement house of four rooms each, toilet, city water, etc., rented at $5 per month each, or $120 per year.

At Nos. 86-88 Dummer street is a cottage property containing 10 rooms, five rooms on each floor and toilet, city water, etc., occupied by the one tenant who pays $15 per month, or $180 per year. In the rear of the above at No. 13, is a dwelling of the cottage type, containing six rooms and two attics, with toilet and city water.

At Nos. 90-92 Dummer street is a two-tenement house and store property; the store with two rooms and toilet, gas and city water, on first floor; six rooms on second floor, and three attics on the floor above, rented to the one tenant who pays $20 per month or $240 per year. At No. 4 in the rear is the other tenement of five rooms, toilet, city water, etc., rented at $6 per month or $72 per year, making a total rent for the building of $26 a month or $312 per year.

At Nos. 6-8 in the rear of No. 92 Dummer street is a block of four tenements, two tenements of three rooms and two tenements of four rooms, toilet, city water, etc., one tenement rented at $5 per month, or $72 per year; the other tenements with a little outlay could be made to rent for an equal amount which would show an income for this building of $24 per month or $288 per year.

At Nos. 102 and 110 Dummer street is a three-story structure, containing 12 tenements, six tenements of five rooms, and six tenements of four rooms, toilets, city water, etc. Tenements are rented, eight tenements at $25 per week each, and four tenements at $2 per week each, making a total income for the building of $26 per week or $1352 per year.

The lot has sewer, gas and water connections, and is of good dimensions; has a splendid area of about 22,549 square feet, with a magnificent frontage on Dummer street of about 254 feet, and an average depth of approximately 85 feet, thereby enabling the erection, if one so desired, of a modern mercantile building, and with its location in the very center of industry, within 350 feet of City Hall, it can rightly be termed a downtown business location. With the completion of the Cardinal O'Connell Parkway, it gives to this property an unobstructed view of, and entrance from Merrimack street.

The premises, at present, have an actual income of $2192 per year, and with the expenditure of a reasonable amount on the unoccupied portions, can be made to return a much greater revenue.

This sale is of unusual importance, being a downtown property with many advantages for future development, owing to its character and lot area, and should especially attract real estate investors, and operators, as the opportunity is seldom, if ever, offered to purchase at open competition a property of this magnitude, and especially in this particular era.

TERMS—$25000 must be paid to the auctioneer, just as soon as the property is struck off. Other terms made known at sale.
By order of PERCY PARKER.

FIFTY-TWO CASES OF MEASLES REPORTED

The week just ending finds Lowell's death rate at its lowest ebb since the week of December 27, 1919, and also produces 52 reported cases of measles, which constitute the largest total for some time and greatly in excess of the number for the corresponding week of last year, when there were but seven.

Twenty-two deaths occurred in the city this week, for a rate of 10.33, against 29 deaths and a rate of 13.97 last week and 24 deaths and a rate of 11.56 during the seven-day period just previous. It is necessary to turn back nearly six months before a rate lower than 10.59 is found, when as of the date above mentioned, the deaths numbered 21.

Deaths under five years, this week, total two; under one year, one; from infectious diseases, two; from pneumonia, four; from measles, one, and from tuberculosis, one. In addition to the 52 cases of measles reported, two cases of scarlet fever and six of tuberculosis came to the attention of the public health department.

WANT A BICYCLE?
Four bicycles found on the streets are at the police station awaiting identification by their owners. All of them are fully equipped with mudguards and good tires. A "Crown" bicycle which was picked up on May 18 on Prescott street, in the rear of the Sun building, is still at the station. A "Pope" said to be the property of one John Beaulieu of 92 John street, an "Emblem" found in rear of 470 Merrimack street, on June 11, and another without any name but with red and gray trimmings, a Klaxon horn, hand pump and heavy tan spring seat, are also awaiting their owners.

CARD OF THANKS
The undersigned takes this method of expressing his sincere and heartfelt thanks to those who by their acts of kindness, expressions of condolence and offerings of floral tributes and spiritual benedictions served to lighten the burden of his sorrow caused by the death of my beloved father. Such evidence of true friendship I will ever cherish in loving remembrance.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION

"Silent Policemen," Ruled Traffic Constructors—Decision Against City

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 12.—"Silent policemen" so-called, used at street intersections for traffic purposes, have been deemed to be traffic obstructions by the Connecticut supreme court of errors, in a decision just rendered. An automobile driven by an attorney collided with a "silent" policeman. He and other occupants of the car had slight injuries and the machine was damaged. A verdict of $3500 against the city of New Haven was appealed but was upheld by the highest court.

SEN. PENROSE HAS A TURN FOR WORSE

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—The prolonged strain of the republican convention has caused a sudden turn for the worse in the condition of Senator Penrose.

Reports to this effect were spread throughout the city today. Color was given them by the announcement that two of the senator's physicians were in attendance at his home early this morning.

HOLD CONFERENCE ON WAGE INCREASE

Representatives of the Trades and Labor Council and engineers and firemen of the city water works were in conference today with Commissioner John F. Salmon relative to wage increases for these classes of employees. The engineers ask for an additional $3 per week, while the firemen request a raise from $2 1/2 to 75 cents an hour.

The commissioner frankly told the men that full compliance with their demands at the present time was absolutely impossible, but that he would go as far as the financial condition of the department allowed. He further stated that by July 1 he would be able to tell how much of an increase he could grant in each instance. The finances of the department were explained at length and the commissioner stressed the point that he would give every possible consideration to the demands of the men. At the present time two head engineers in the department receive $12 a week, with assistant engineers receiving $37. A flat $3 increase is requested.

ABANDON FREIGHT BUSINESS
Although the trolley express and freight business was never extended to this city through the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway company word was received through the office of Thomas Lees, manager of the local division of the road, that in those sections where it has been in use it will be dropped entirely on the 15th of this month.

The first five presidents of the United States ended their terms of service each in the sixty-sixth year of his age.

5TH, 6TH AND 7TH BALLOTS

COLISEUM, Chicago, June 12.—The republican national convention went into the eighth inning today with Wood leading Lowden by one-half a vote. Wood's total was 312, while Lowden stood at 311½ votes. Lowden had gained exactly 100 votes since the first ballot yesterday.

Harding had been making steady but small gains throughout the fifth and sixth ballots, and the word had come up from the delegates that the leaders were going to fight it out a little longer before the expected break.

Michigan, solidly instructed with her 30 votes for Johnson, was the first state to change in today's balloting, giving votes to General Wood. Ohio also gave some Harding votes to Wood, but the Harding men said they would return to the Harding column with accessions expected from New York.

TWO MANIACS CAUSE REIGN OF TERROR

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., June 12.—Thousands of citizens of Connecticut river towns from West Lebanon to Meriden have armed themselves with revolvers, shotguns and rifles as a result of a veritable reign of terror created by two men believed to be maniacs, who have set fire to farm buildings, stoned passenger trains, held up automobile parties and frightened women and children.

Lebanon, a town of about 500 inhabitants five miles across the state line in New Hampshire, has been the center of the crazed men's activities. There they set fire to the dwelling and barn on the farm of Arthur Wood, causing damage estimated at more than $12,000.

Three other attempts to set fire to property have been made within the last few days. The barn of a farmer named Reuben Trus was burned.

The men have broken into stables and barns and tortured horses and cattle by cutting off their ears and feet.

The police forces of White River Junction and surrounding cities are on the alert day and night in an attempt to run down the desperadoes, who have thus far evaded capture.

The men have been operating chiefly in Lebanon, for more than a week. Wednesday night they attempted to hold up two men returning to Lebanon from this city, but they were driven back into the woods when one of the men obtained a rifle and fired several shots. The desperadoes did not return the fire, however, and in the opinion of the police do not carry firearms.

Hardware and variety stores have sold out their stock of revolvers and rifles to citizens arming themselves against the maniacs.

Chief of Police O'Keefe said yesterday that one store in Lebanon had sold its stock of 128 revolvers within the last few days. Firearms in stock for years have been "cleaned out."

The desperadoes start their work of creating terror about midnight and continue until dawn. After the midnight hour, the police of Lebanon and towns and villages in the vicinity held up all automobilists. In the event that the maniacs may travel in an automobile.

Unable to buy a revolver in this district, a White River Junction woman, who gave her name as Miss Cora Newton, went to Boston yesterday and bought one, saying she wished to take every precaution to defend herself when she returns to this city.

Chief of Police O'Keefe said today he does not believe the men have escaped from any institution, but rather come from some town along the Connecticut river valley. They seem to be well acquainted with the highways in the district and, in the opinion of Chief O'Keefe, "know the ropes."

BODY OF INFANT FOUND IN FIELD

The body of a male infant, whose life had evidently been extinct for some time, was found this forenoon in a field off Humphrey street by boys living in that section. The matter was reported to the police authorities and to Medical Examiner Thomas B. Smith and after examination the latter ordered it removed to the undertaking rooms of James W. McKenna & Son in Bridge street for further investigation.

The body was found by a boy living in Beacon street some time between 10.30 and 11.30 o'clock. He had gone to the field in question to milk a cow belonging to his father and as he went to pick up a switch, he noticed a newspaper bundle lying in a clump of bushes nearby. The date of the paper was June 11. There were comic pictures in the paper and desiring to look at them, he stooped to pick up the bundle. As he did so it unrolled and within was the body of a baby. He called the attention of two other boys to the discovery and then notified his father.

The latter notified the police and Inspector Dwyer and Dr. Smith visited the field. The body was in early stages of development. The case is being investigated by the medical examiner and the police.

AMBULANCE CASE

Lowell Guild Raises Money to Care for Health of Little Ones

Today is tag day of the baby hygiene department of the Lowell Guild. Its slogan is "Save the Babies" and it is hoped that at least $2500 will be raised to be expended in the work of protecting and caring for the health of the little ones.

The work of soliciting funds began at 6.30 o'clock this morning when Miss Ruth Pilling took up her station in Merrimack square in front of The Sun building and with box in hand began to gather in contributions. At first the square was almost deserted and a lone policeman seemed to be glad of Miss Pilling's company. A little later, though, a stream of pedestrians.

FAVOR HARDING AS DARK HORSE

Ohio Senator Emerges From Conferences as Man Picked to Break Deadlock

Coolidge Mentioned as "Dark Horse"—Also Favored for Second Place

CHICAGO, June 12. (By Associated Press)—Harding of Ohio emerged today from the all-night conferences of republican chieftains as the man whom they expect to break the imminent deadlock on the presidential nomination.

On him they plan to concentrate their strength should the convention fail to break through the blockade established yesterday by four ballots.

Senator Harding participated in the conferences. He also saw Senator Johnson.

DIVORCES ARE ON THE INCREASE HERE

More divorces have been granted Lowell couples so far in 1920 than during the entire year of 1919, according to records of William G. Dillingham, clerk of courts for Middlesex county.

So far this year 35 divorces have been granted Lowell couples, while last year during the entire 12 months there were only 20 divorces allowed in which Lowell couples were involved.

One of the reasons assigned for the increase is the fact that more divorces sessions of the superior court have been held this year than last. There will not be another session this year until November.

However, the ratio of divorces to marriages here in Lowell is still held kept at a low figure. While 20 Lowell couples were finding married life an unhappy state in 1919, 1342 couples were joined in wedlock for better or for worse, evidently not in the least deterred by the fate of their broken and sister matrimonial adventures.

So far this year 592 couples have shown their lack of apprehension of the divorce court by filing intentions of marriage at the office of City Clerk Stephen Flynn. While these couples were anticipating wedded bliss, 25 other Lowell couples were applying for separation.

GILLET LAUDS GOV. COOLIDGE

Places Name of Bay State
Governor in Nomination at
G. O. P. Convention

Patient as Lincoln, as Diplomatic as McKinley, With
Instinct of Roosevelt

CHICAGO, Ill., June 12.—Characterizing Governor Calvin Coolidge, of Massachusetts, as a man who believes that obedience to law is liberty and that this is a government of laws and not of men, Congressman Frederick H. Gillett, of Massachusetts, placed the name of the governor of his state in nomination for the presidency at the republican national convention here late yesterday afternoon.

Speaker Gillett told the republican delegates that the placing of such a man as Governor Coolidge in the presidential chair would clear the murky atmosphere of Washington like a bracing northern breeze. "He is as patient as Lincoln, as diplomatic as McKinley, with the political instinct of Roosevelt."

Congressman Gillett's speech follows: "A year ago hardly a man outside of New England knew who was governor of Massachusetts. Today every man and woman in this vast audience, every lover of ordered liberty in the United States, knows and rejoices that the governor of Massachusetts is Calvin Coolidge."

"Opportunity—which knocks once at every man's door—came to him and found him waiting her summons, calm, courageous, resolute to do his duty though the heavens fall. And he did it so well, he met his great opportunity with so masterful a spirit as to send a thrill of admiration through every community in the land, and every honest man felt safer because there was such a governor as Coolidge."

"Isn't that the type of man you want for president today? Nominate him and you rally behind him that underlying devotion to our public security, that faith in our republican institutions which when once aroused is overpowering and irresistible. He is supported by no special class or interest, but he attracts all those who believe that obedience to law is liberty, who wish this to be a government of laws and not of men."

"Just to do his duty well has been his life's characteristic. None has been too small for his painstaking, conscientious care; none has arisen too large for his ability or his courage. I believe there is no burden or honor you can place on him of which he is not worthy."

"A boyhood on a lonely farm in Vermont bred him in industry, frugality, self-reliance. The granite hills seemed to have moulded his grave, indomitable character. Family self-denial gave

TREATMENT OF NEURASTHENIA

Since the recent epidemic of influenza there has been an increasingly large number of cases of neurasthenia, a disease which is due to the exhaustion of the nervous system. The neurasthenic feels an abnormal irritability and there is a weakness of the nerve centers which regulate the organic functions. The memory fails, sleep is fitful and disturbed, the victim is fault-finding and suspicious, food does not agree with him and indigestion occurs frequently.

All the symptoms of neurasthenia indicate the need of a tonic that is free from alcohol and opiates. If the blood is built up nourishment is carried to the exhausted nerves and the general health is restored. An example of the success of this treatment is afforded by the experience of Mrs. Minnie Russell, who lives at No. 111 Chelsea street, Everett, Mass.

"I had a nervous breakdown following an attack of influenza," she says. "I lost a great deal of strength in a short time and my blood was very thin. I suffered from nervous, splitting headaches and pains across my temples. I did not sleep well and when I did get to sleep would wake up with a start, as from nervousness. My appetite was poor and I was always cold. I worried a great deal over my condition and felt melancholy at times."

"It was my good fortune to hear about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I decided to try them. A few weeks after I started the treatment my strength began to return. My appetite improved and the headaches and other pains became gradually less severe and finally disappeared. My color is good now, my nerves are stronger and I feel better than I have in a long time."

Your own druggist can supply you with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills or they will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 60 cents per box. Write the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., for the free booklet, "Diseases of the Nervous System."

But his neighbors soon recognized the value of this quiet, sagacious man, and drafted him into the public service, and he glided from one useful station to another till he reached the highest office of our state. He is not showy or spectacular, but he never disappoints. The limelight attracts him less than the midnight oil. No audience ever fails to listen to his weighty sentences and when they go away they vote as he has talked. A poor man, living in the most frugal simplicity, he always had the confidence and support of the working people, rich and poor are to him alike equal before the law. He never cracks the pregnant hinges of the knee before pretentious power, nor stiffens his neck in pride before lowly weakness; but he holds the even tenor of his upright way, following his pole-star of duty.

"Would it not be a restful change to see such a man in the White House today? His straight-forward personality would clear the murky atmosphere of Washington like a bracing northern breeze. We have been fed long enough on glittering rhetoric and extravagant novelties and rainbow-tinged dreams. We need an era of hard sense and old freedom. We need to re-invigorate the homely, orderly virtues which have made America great."

"Do you demand for your candidate a man of native ability? Take him who, an unknown country lawyer, won the confidence of the legislature in his first term. Do you want a profound political thinker? Take the author of that inspiring volume 'Have Faith in Massachusetts.' Do you want courage? Take the governor who just before an election sent the dauntless message: 'There is no right to strike against the public safety by anybody anywhere any time.' Do you want a winner? Take the man who has never concealed his conviction, who has never lowered his standards and who has never known defeat."

"I have not a word to say of depreciation for the splendid men whose names have been put in nomination. I can follow any one of these veterans with enthusiasm and confidence. But it is to the glory of the republican party that there constantly emerge from the ranks young men able to bear forward our banner to new glory. Such a man is our governor. He is patient as Lincoln, silent as Grant, diplomatic as McKinley, with the political instinct of Roosevelt. His character is as firm as the mountain of his native state. Like them his head is above the clouds and he stands unshaken amid the tumult and the storm."

"I nominate for president, Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts."

DR. BUTLER OF N. Y.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 12.—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Colombia University, was placed in nomination for the presidency before the republican national convention yesterday by Ogden Mills of the New York delegation.

"Never since the election of Lincoln have problems of such vital importance to our national life demanded wise leadership and awaited solution," said Mr. Mills. "While met ostensibly to nominate a candidate, we shall before we separate have in reality chosen a president. We are not concerned with any man's place of residence, or his occupation, or his previous public affairs. We are concerned with his fitness alone. Fitness is availability."

"A mighty war has shaken the foundations of civilization, and left in its train economic, social and political problems, national and international, so fundamental and complex that the world today may be said to be groping in its search for light. This is more true of Europe than of the United States; but even our victorious, powerful and independent nation is not free from the heavy burdens of the day, as evidenced by widespread unrest, industrial strife, a high cost of living that bears with constantly increasing weight on every family, a staggering load of taxes, decreased productions and business hesitation, and a feeling of doubt and

Then She Heard of 'FRUIT-A-LIVES' and Cured Herself of Constipation

MRS. JOHN CAPOZZI

Ashford, New York.

"I feel it my duty to tell you what 'Fruit-a-lives' or Fruit Liver Tablets did for me."

I tried several kinds of physic for over three years; and, of course, while I took it every night my bowels would move; but as soon as I stopped taking physic, I would be constipated and would have Piles terribly.

I heard of 'Fruit-a-lives' and bought one box and took them. Now I am not troubled any more with Constipation and do more Piles.

'Fruit-a-lives' did for me what no other medicine ever did; they left no after-effects, and now I do not have to use physic.

I recommend 'Fruit-a-lives' to all my friends."

lack of direct experience not only in respect of domestic questions but of international policy, and which has led some in despair to question our institutions themselves.

"Face to face with these problems, what manner of man must this new president be?"

"First and foremost, an American to the bone, not merely an American by birth or education, constructively minded—a builder, not a destroyer. The next president will lead a powerful majority and must do more than expose abuses; he must reform them."

"He must be a tried executive, but he must be much more than an administrator. No man should be president today who has not a clean cut conception of our international relations and of our traditional foreign policy. Never again must the United States suffer as it has in the last 13 months from unbalanced and inexperienced leadership."

"Finally, he cannot be sectional, but must be national in his antecedents and interests. He cannot belong to any one part of the country, but must know and be known to all."

"Of all the distinguished names presented to you for your consideration there is only one candidate who satisfactorily meets all of these tests."

"Nicholas Murray Butler does. I know no man who is more constructively minded than Dr. Butler. In many of our party platforms, with which you are familiar, he has invariably contributed the note of construction and progress in definite and concrete language. This quality has been recognized by every president since Harrison with the exception of Cleveland and Wilson. He is a tried and proved executive. No man is better qualified by training and experience to give that wise leadership that is so necessary to the re-establishment of a sound, consistent American foreign policy. It may fairly be said that he is as well known in the states of California and Washington as in the states of New York and New Jersey."

"A man of vision but not a visionary; a thinker who does not make thoughts his master; an idealist who does not make dreams his aims; a man whose ambition is deeds, not words, and who has realized that ambition in practice; a believer first and last in his country and its institutions, Nicholas Murray Butler is a truly representative American, worthy of high esteem in which he is held by his countrymen and of high position to which he aspires. With a full realization of the solemn responsibility, the state of New York presents to your earnest consideration the name of Nicholas Murray Butler as the candidate of the republican party for the presidency of the United States."

you must keep your stomach well, your liver active, your bowels regular and blood pure.

If you get up in the morning tired; if you get exhausted with the slightest exertion—you can depend upon it that your liver is torpid and needs waking up. A few doses of SEVEN BARKS, nature's great remedy, will "wake up" that lazy liver, and make you feel like new.

If your liver has been overworked, it would cause your whole system to fill up with acids and poisons that would make you feel weak, tired, out and sick. You can easily remove the acids and poisons from your system by taking from 10 to 20 drops of SEVEN BARKS in a little water after meals. It will keep your bowels moving naturally every day, cleanse your system thoroughly, eliminate undigested food, and bring you back to active and normal health again.

SEVEN BARKS is nature's remedy made from the extracts of roots and herbs and has stood the test for many, many years, and will certainly give you a feeling of new life and vigor. To feel fresh and fit for your daily duties, you must keep your stomach and liver active and bowels regular.

To get and keep well ask your druggist for SEVEN BARKS. If he is out of it, he will get it for you. Accept no substitute. Price 60 cents.—Adv.

GOVERNMENT BUYS 14,000 TONS OF SUGAR

BUENOS AIRES, June 12.—The United States government has bought 14,000 tons of Argentine sugar.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Thirty-four millions of pounds of sugar will be available for commercial canners and preservers during the five months from June 1, to Oct. 31, A. W. Riley special assistant to Atty. Gen. Palmer announced yesterday. Assurances that the sugar would be provided were given Mr. Riley said, by representatives of the refiners.

DOWNWARD TURN IN PRICE RECORD

Bradstreet's today says: "As indicated a month ago in these columns, the slight rise in prices indicated by Bradstreet's index number as of May 1 over April 1 was more apparent than real, reflecting effects on prices of the congestion of all freight growing out of the outlay railroad strike early in April, but not entirely the improvement in conditions later in the month."

"It was also stated that the May 1 prices did not and could not reflect the effect on prices of the quieting in trade noted in the early part of last month, but this exception does not hold good of the June 1 number given herewith, which shows the largest recession noted in any month except January, 1919, and with that exception the largest decline noted in any month, or for that matter any full year, since the index number was first compiled. Two advances in excess of this amount occurred, one in July, 1919, and another in August, 1914, when the great war began."

or in August, 1914, when the great war began.

"Nine out of 13 groups of prices entering into the index number declined during May, textiles leading in the volume of decrease. Four groups advanced, but these showed only slight gains, drugs, breadstuffs, building materials and coal and coke coming in order of importance of advances."

"In January, 1919, it might be recalled, the percentage of decrease was 4.8 per cent, and in that decline, as in this, textiles led in proportion of decrease."

ANOTHER N. Y. PAPER GOES TO 3 CENTS

NEW YORK, June 12.—The New York American announced last night, that beginning Monday the price would increase from two to three cents. The American is the first morning paper here to increase to three cents, although three of the evening papers recently took such action.

Nearly 15,000,000 acres in Canada are devoted to wheat growing.

HELD WHIST PARTY AND POP CONCERT

Highland hall in Branch street, was yesterday the scene of a pretty gathering, the occasion being a whist party in the afternoon, followed by a pop concert and general dancing in the evening, the affair being given under the auspices of the Boosters' club of the Sons and Daughters of Liberty. There was a large attendance and all present enjoyed the program immensely.

The whist was under the direction of Miss Ethel Douglas and the prize winners were Mrs. Rhodes, Mrs. L. A. Brown, Mrs. Ives and Mrs. Gertrude White. At the close of the whist, fees were served by the following: Laura Lapointe, Laura Courley, Ivy Noyes, May Davis, Agnes Davis, Frances Plaislead, Edna Southam, May Richardson and Margaret Dow.

Those who took part in the pop concert in the evening were Arabelle Whitcomb, Master Stuart Davis, Eleanor Ellis, C. Frederick Porter, Wilbur Roberts and the Mandolin club composed of the following: Yolande Dewart and Dorothy and Rachel Dobbins. The committee in charge of the affair was as follows: William Douglas, Ethel Douglas, Guy Whitney, Mabel F. Lapointe, Guy Whitney, Charles J. White, Arthur Jamieson, Harold Young, Chester Hibbs, Harold Wilkins and Errol Honey.

The platform committee of the republican national convention undertook to please everybody and the result of its labors doesn't appear to be satisfactory to anybody.

Hooray! A West Virginia concern has been fined $35,000 for sugar profiteering. Perhaps, though, we had better save our hurrahs until we learn that the fine has been paid.

Mayor Thompson has many important items on his list of municipal business to be transacted, but not the least of these is the selection of the members of Lowell's charter commission, which must be accomplished before July 1.

Some people who have read the news from Chicago will be inclined to ask why the big Illinois Steel company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, should give a luncheon to 1000 delegates, half as many alternates and an indefinite number of political managers of the republican national convention. The search for an answer need not be a long one.

The services of Kosciuszko and Pulaski to America can never be forgotten, neither should the fact be allowed to slip from mind that Governor Coolidge has designated Sunday, June 13, as "Polish Liberty bond day." Money paid now for a Polish bond will be an investment in behalf of a nation that is battling for its freedom and independence from Bolshevik rule.

An official in charge of a flying squadron of the department of justice which is operating against profiteers in New York City, says that the campaign is to continue until "prices of food, clothing, fuel, and feed for livestock are brought to more normal levels." The flying squadrons of the whole country have thus far captured 107 profiteers. At this rate how long will it take them to bring prices down to "a more normal level?"

Secretary of State Colby does not place such a high valuation upon the content and diction of Senator Lodge's keynote address as some of the editors of republican newspapers are doing. Speaking at the commencement exercises of Elmira, N. Y., college, from which his mother graduated in 1861, he said some of the essays of members of the graduating class of which his mother was a member "would make more profitable reading than the remarks of the temporary chairman of the republican national convention." Mr. Colby is not the first person to detect something schoolboyish in the literary efforts of the senior Massachusetts senator.

INDICTMENTS QUASHED
If the head of the American Woolen company is a profiteer, there is no law on the statute books sufficiently clear to reach him. The point turns on the decision of the court that woolen cloth is not wearing apparel and, sure enough, it isn't; but if the price of cloth is unreasonable so will be wearing apparel, just as dear flour makes high priced bread. But there was no proof offered that the Woolen company is charging unreasonable prices for its cloth. Only an expert inquiry could decide that question.

CANCELLING DEBTS
It seems that with a sympathetic administration at Washington next year, a strong agitation will be started for the cancellation of the debts owed to the United States by England, France and Italy on the ground that forced payment would produce an economic collapse in Europe which would make our loans uncollectable and destroy our foreign markets.
Another move is to pay our loans if at all with German bonds. Frank Simonds and other writers primed for the purpose are urging cancellation of our loans to Europe on the allegation that payment will be followed by indirect loss more serious than the amount of the loans. That is part of the game to secure cancellation. If Hoover were elected president he would undoubtedly favor cancellation. That is one reason why he is not wanted.

If the city cannot purchase new quarters for the Vocational school, it might solve the problem by leasing the necessary space in some

the signal indicates a clear right of way in the block ahead.
When confronted with incidents such as described, railway operatives are very likely to lay the blame to officials of the roads "higher up" who, they assert, not only wink at violations of the rules forbidding running past danger signals, but also to a degree encourage such practices by favoring men who are able to bring their trains into terminals on time without much regard as to the way in which they get them there.
Railroad officials deny this allegation and say that they disapprove of running past danger signals and do all they can to prevent the practice. In the case of the Schenectady wreck, the engineer of the express train is dead. Otherwise he might have an interesting story to tell.
On some roads a mechanical device has been tried out with more or less success that automatically stops a train before it can enter a block in which another train is already present. Perhaps it is to the adoption of this or some similar device that travelers will have to look for greater safety in connection with journeys by rail. What is needed is some mechanical device to serve as a check on the erratic tendencies of the human element.

THE G. O. P. PLATFORM
Never in its history did the republican party adopt a platform so academic and insipid as that just put forth with great travail at Chicago. There is not in the entire document a single sentence that has the ring of patriotic earnestness. In no instance does the language used rise above the tame, the timid, the monotonous, and the super-cautious tone characteristic of the spirit of neutrality in action between warring elements.
First of all the compromise on the League of Nations is the refuge of political expediency, admittedly resorted to in order to appease elements that threatened disruption. Thus, so far as this issue is concerned, the plank adopted means nothing. It has platitudinous statements about "an agreement among the nations to preserve the peace of the world," while holding to the policies of Washington and Monroe, and at the same time, "performing our duties to civilization without surrendering the right of the American people to exercise its judgment and power in favor of justice and peace."
That is all very fine. It served the purpose which was to pacify the irreconcilable enemies of the League of Nations such as Borah and Johnson.
In the main the platform is non-committal to any policy on which there can be a difference of opinion, unless in dealing with the present administration. In charging the government with unpreparedness for war and equal unpreparedness for peace, the republican platform goes so far as to slander our army and navy by making this false statement:
"Had not our associates protected us, both on land and sea, during the final 12 months of our participation, and furnished us to the very day of the armistice with munitions, planes and artillery, this failure would have been punished with disaster."

Had not the United States supplied the allies with ammunition and materials of all kinds both before we entered the war and after, they could not have resisted the power of Germany to such a great extent as they did; and but for the aid of our army and navy, there is little room for doubt that the allies would have lost the war.
We are not a militaristic nation and the government was not justified in making warlike preparations while there was no certainty that war would be declared. This charge in the republican platform is a slander upon the millions of brave men who fought on land and sea and who with ever memorable energy brought victory to the allied cause.
Still wobbling under the disaster of 1912 and the lack of aggressive leadership, the party has lost its courage and its erstwhile bold adherence to principle. Note the pussyfoot manner in which it deals with such questions as the tariff, labor and industry, immigration and commerce. There is not a word of the

People sometimes wonder as to the exact meaning of the term "invisible government." Candor compels the admission that it is an exceedingly elusive article, although its existence, and the results of such existence, are real enough. Certain happenings at Chicago this week shed interesting light on the subject.
According to the New York World, there have been gathered together in the convention city half a score of men from different parts of the country whose purpose it has been to influence and direct the course of the republican party in making its platform and selecting candidates for the presidency.
These men, according to the World, represent wealth that, if used for the purpose, could cancel overnight the immense war debt, and all other debts, of the United States.
None of these men has any standing before the country as a statesman, politician, party leader or publicist. If the name of the member of the party from Boston were printed, probably not one person in ten thousand in the state would be able to place the individual mentioned. Not one of the gentlemen is a delegate to or has any official connection with the convention.
Yet these men are the real power behind the throne in the republican party. They are the centre and initial source of the activities that spread out and, through agents and beneficiaries big and little, to a large extent dictate and control the policies of the party.

RAILROAD ACCIDENTS
The railroad accident this week near Schenectady, N. Y., in which one Massachusetts man was killed and several people of the state were injured, appears to have been due to a cause that has been responsible for a number of similar disasters lately.
In this particular accident an express train running at high speed crashed into the rear end of a stalled train ahead of it. According to the reports of investigators, the engineer of the express deliberately ran past a distance and a home signal that was "set against" him, and disregarded the warning of a red lantern waved by the rear brakeman who had been sent out to protect the train ahead. It would appear that the engineer was asleep or strangely inattentive to duty.
When an engineer comes to a distance signal that is "set against" him he is supposed to slow down his locomotive and proceed with caution until the home signal is reached. If the home signal is set at danger the rules require that the train shall be brought to a complete standstill and remain so until the signal indicates a clear right of way in the block ahead.

When confronted with incidents such as described, railway operatives are very likely to lay the blame to officials of the roads "higher up" who, they assert, not only wink at violations of the rules forbidding running past danger signals, but also to a degree encourage such practices by favoring men who are able to bring their trains into terminals on time without much regard as to the way in which they get them there.
Railroad officials deny this allegation and say that they disapprove of running past danger signals and do all they can to prevent the practice. In the case of the Schenectady wreck, the engineer of the express train is dead. Otherwise he might have an interesting story to tell.

SEEN AND HEARD
How did you like yesterday's suggestion and sample of what July and August will bring?
Rather appropriate is Chicago's 92 degree temperature with a red hot G. O. P. convention in session.
Diving space was at a premium in the old swimming hole yesterday almost as soon as school was over.
There is a prevailing opinion that Germany wouldn't be quite so hasty if she had it to do over again.
A Hungarian woman predicts that our next president will be bald. Well, in this country we have no hair apparent.
A fine opportunity
A farmer and his fair young cousin from the city were going around the farm together, and the farmer was rapidly falling beneath the spell of the town maiden's eyes. "Now, that's a pretty scene," he said, pausing beside the fence of a paddock in which a cow and a calf were rubbing noses together. "The sight of it makes me want to do the same." "Well, go on," said the girl placidly. "It's your cow, you know!"

To the amazement of the court the witness replied: "He was a man without blame, beloved and respected by all, pure in all his thoughts, and

"How did you learn that?" demanded the judge in surprise.

The Populist Party
A reader of this column submits the following question: What was the populist party? When was it started?
Answer—The populist party was an organization which grew out of the movements previously started by the Grangers and Farmers' Alliance. Its aim was the general social development of country people. The party was organized at Cincinnati in May 1891. Its platform included a demand for free coinage of silver, abolition of national banking system, national ownership of public communication and transportation means, popular election of United States senators, adoption of initiative and referendum and prohibition of alien ownership of land.
"Have a Heart"
If you answer the smile of the baby across the aisle on the street car—That's having a heart. If you stoop and stroke the kitten that runs up to you on the street—That's having a heart. If you guide the blind man across the crowded corner by the arm—That's having a heart. You will live—and prosper probably—if you do none of these three things, or similar little kindnesses. But you won't be living a free and natural life, a life that knows real love and real kindness. The world today is too crowded with the other kind of men—those who return the smile of a child with a blank stare or a scowl, those who look the other way when they see a blind man in need of assistance. Let those who are of that stripe change, and a warm sunshine of genuine love will flood the world. There can be no wars then, no prejudices, no fights.

SPECIAL TOWN MEETING WARRANT
At a meeting of the finance committee for the town of Billerica recommendations were prepared relative to the warrant, which will be brought to the attention of the voters at the special town meeting, which will be held June 21.
The warrant will contain 10 articles, which were thoroughly discussed at the meeting of the finance committee. The appropriation of $15,000 for additions to the pumping station will be recommended. The sum of $5000 for the purchase of the old Howe school and $5000 to increase the salaries of the teachers and to meet the increased cost of transportation of pupils will also be recommended. The committee will not favor Sunday baseball, but will recommend the appropriation of $5000 for snow work during the past winter.
No action was taken at the meeting on the proposed memorial for veterans of the world war as the committee did not have its report ready.

MAN ABOUT TOWN
John J. Dalton's death has stirred forever the splendid voice that was his and which many hundreds of Lowell people have heard in generous measure before the footlights, at banquets, at recitals and intoning the impressive music of the requiem. His passing recalls the death of his loyal friend, Ed Shea, several years ago, at whose bedside John Dalton had maintained a ceaseless vigil. Music hath charms, 'tis true, and the lamented Shea and Dalton possessed the happy faculty of blending lilting melodies with prosaic classics into many an evening of delight. John Dalton was ever courteous, affable, honorable, the friend of many, a man among men and without an evil or ungenerous thought. It is difficult to say in which songs he excelled, but I recall his effort on one occasion of the Twentieth Century Bachelor club's events, when his friend, Ed Shea, lay cold in death and John was called upon to take part in the program of the evening. Repressing the unbidden tear, struggling with the innermost emotions that tugged at his heart-strings, he sang sweetly and with deep pathos "A Perfect Day." Not one in the audience but knew that the song had much import for the singer that evening, and his effort was vastly more of a task than any of his previous offerings. His repertoire was almost inexhaustible, running from the happy melodies of Ireland's Tom Moore or of Balfe, which had much favor with him, to the classics of the noted composers, sung with exquisite enunciation, and the touching requiem hymns of Loeblach and others, which he gave feelingly and with deep devotion. 'Tis hard, indeed, to realize that "the sound of his voice is stilled." As he fares forth to the great beyond, we can join with Moore and say:
"All that's bright must fade;
The brightest still the fleetest.
All that's sweet was made
But to be lost when sweetest."

In reply to several inquiries relative to the impersonation of Mayor Lawrence in the historical pageant the official who received President Jackson, I may say that for some reason, perhaps on account of his family, Mayor Lawrence, was brought on the scene at the expense of historical accuracy. President Jackson visited Lowell in 1833, while Lowell was yet a town, and according to Cowley's history, he was accompanied by Vice President Martin Van Buren, Judge Woodbury and other members of the cabinet. The date was June 26. An address of welcome was made by Joshua Swan, chairman of the board of selectmen, and the party then passed through the principal streets where triumphal arches had been erected and decorated with flags and flowers. Lowell was incorporated as a city in 1838 and Elisha Bartlett was the first mayor. He served two years and in 1840 was succeeded by Luther Lawrence. The report in a local paper that the personage represented as escorting President Jackson was the mayor of Lawrence was without foundation.

The only feature missing from the Sells-Floto circus program was the time-honored series of Roman chariot races, the running races—usually with one horse without a rider—and other matches around the track under the "big top." The tent was too narrow to permit them, but we believe there was more than one grown-up in the crowd who regretted their absence more than a little. Even though it was always easy to dope out beforehand which horse or horses would win, the races, nevertheless, were exciting and made a splendid finale. Maybe the larger circus which pays us a visit later in the month will have this feature on the program and if so, it will find as much popularity as ever. Another innovation brought by Sells-Floto was in the type of after-show announced. Usually it includes a little bit of this and less of that, but Thursday's circus announced an up-to-date and complete musical comedy for 25 cents and several hundred lingered to see it.

Geologists have a theory that the Merrimack river once made its way to the sea by way of the bed of the Concord river, the basin of the Mystic lakes and the Mystic river. In the days when the earth was still shrimpy and nature reset her scenes at more or less frequent intervals, something happened to alter the course of the old stream. What that something was no one attempts to say exactly, although there are theories regarding this also. One of them is that there was an earth upheaval somewhere that threw a dam across the former bed of the waterway. Another theory ascribes the formation of a big ice jam that was slow in melting as the cause of the change. Whatever happened, so the geologists claim, the Merrimack decided to slide along down past the sites where Lawrence, Haverhill and Newburyport are now located instead of following its old path. Occasionally some bit of evidence turns up that seems to furnish at least partial corroboration of this theory. At the site on Middle street where the New Harbison hotel is to be built workers are now excavating through material that bears indications that it once formed the bed of a big, slow-moving, lakelike river. The material being excavated is alluvial sand and sandy clay, and there is an entire absence of gravel and boulders such as were carried along by the glacial drift. There are also visible on close examination lines of stratification that indicate that the earth in the vicinity was laid down in successive deposits at the bottom of a river.

CUBA'S WIRE SERVICE TIED UP
HAVANA, Cuba, June 11.—Telegraphic service throughout Cuba is seriously crippled by the strike of government operators which began today following a rejection of their demands for a salary increase amounting to 100 per cent. The government is attempting to maintain a semblance of service through its inspectors.

DESERTS KEYBOARD FOR WASHBOARD
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 12.—From Do-re-mi and the C scale to Hubadub-dub. Yes, verily, from keyboard to washboard!
Prof. Will Spahr, for many years a teacher of music, both piano and vocal, has followed the advice of the government experts, who say that what the nation needs is more productive and less non-productive labor. Spahr, doing his bit to help the nation's employment problem, has given up teaching the younger generation how to play and has turned to the washboard as the instrument on which he will play his role through the reconstruction period. In other words, he's taking in washing, doing laundry, helping the world keep clean!
Incidentally, he says, he finds that the market for his services has increased, that the pay is better and

THE MYSTERY SOLVED
It was a great mystery about Wally Woodchuck getting upstairs from the kitchen without anyone seeing him, and a still greater mystery how he got the children up there and into their trundle beds! When everyone knew he had put them out that very day.

But while Tingaling and the twins stood, watching Wally rocking the babies and singing to them in his electric-sweeper voice, who should come rushing upstairs but the wise old Magical Mashroom. He had been keeping guard outside. "Oh, ho, so there he is!" he exclaimed, pointing to Wally. "I'm going to tell on him. He made a new back door-way out of the kitchen, while we were waiting in the parlor for your tea, hunted up his lost babies, and then rushed home again with them. He dug a hole in the roof of his bedroom and dropped them in." The Mashroom talked so fast he was all out of breath.
Tingaling, the fairy landlord, jingled his bells meaningly, and Wally shivered.

MEXICO PLANS TO SEND MISSION TO U. S.
WASHINGTON, June 12.—Reports have reached the state department through unofficial channels that the New Mexican government is about to send to the United States a mission to discuss the relations between the two countries in an entirely informal way. Miguel Corcorran, the dean of Mexican diplomats, and Fernando Iglesias Calderon, a historian of note, are mentioned as heading the mission.
The mission will not have plenary powers, but it is the desire of the Mexican government, according to reports, that it determine a basis for the adjustment of all the differences between the two countries.

MACHINISTS MEET
A regular meeting of Local 133, International Association of Machinists, was held last evening with President Parker F. Murphy in the chair. Routine business was transacted and President Murphy and Bartholomew Swift were elected delegates to the grand lodge convention, which will be held at Rochester, N. Y., the first week of September.

DRACUT NEWS

Measles Prevalent — Farm Help Scarce—Other Items

Because of a rather extensive epidemic of measles in the town of Dracut some of the public entertainments in which children were to take part have been postponed. For the past few weeks the disease has spread steadily among the school children but Dr. Mason D. Bryant, who has tended to the majority of cases, states that it has been so mild that in many instances, the parents did not detect it before contagion was diffused among the companions of their children. Now, however, conditions seem to be in check and the postponement of public gatherings is a precautionary measure. There are about twenty cases of measles centering around Dracut Center.

Rev. Jenkinson of the Dracut Center church had planned elaborate exercises in the church on Sunday in which the kindergarten and primary grades of the school were to participate, but they have been postponed until the last Sunday in June, the 27th.

A girl scout sale and fair which was to be held within a few days was also postponed.

In the Sunday services in the Center church music will be by the quartet composed of Miss Roth, Mrs. Peabody, Mr. Orrell and Mr. Sewall. "Tollers in the Field of Time" will be the theme of the sermon by Rev. Jenkinson.

Nine girls and six boys will receive their first communion on June 13 in St. Mary's church in Collinsville. The class has been receiving instruction for the past few weeks. Rev. Fr. Michael Gilbride will officiate.

Owing to the rain last Sunday there were not many campers at Lakeview to attend the first summer services of the Catholic chapel, but Fr. Gilbride expects a good attendance when the good weather brings the crowd to the lake. The chapel is over the dining room next to the dance hall.

Graduation Exercises

The graduation exercises of the Dracut Center and Collinsville grammar schools will be held on Friday evening June 18 and those of the Kenwood and Parker Avenue on the afternoon of the same day. Capt. W. MacBrayne, now of Battery B, this city, will speak to the graduates of the Dracut Center school, and Charles Randall, superintendent of the schools of the town, will make short addresses at the other schools.

Last week Miss Edith Merchant, supervisor of vocational training, directed an exhibit of manual training in the schools. The handicraft of the pupils was on exhibition during an afternoon and evening and the schools were well attended.

Pianists Party

The Ladies' Aid society of the Dracut Center church is making arrangements for a lawn party on next Wednesday evening on the church grounds. The lawn will be decorated with electric lights and lanterns and the affair will be featured by many entertaining events. Mr. Harry Fox and Mrs. Arthur Manning have general charge. Mrs. James Walsh will direct the candy table, Mrs. Sam Pillsbury the food table, Mr. Alton Barry the ice cream table, Mrs. Harry Fox the frankfort and rolls table and Mr. Alfred Fox the tonic table. The directors will try to secure the Middlesex County Training School band or the orchestra.

At a meeting of the society last Wednesday afternoon the members tied four quilts which will be sold later.

The Miracle Battery

George Mozley, now of the candy department of D. L. Page company, who went overseas with Battery F, now Battery B, from this city will soon have his book "The Miracle Battery" completed and ready for the public. Mr. Mozley's keen insight into human nature, his personal experiences in the trenches and in the training camp will make his story of the local battery one of widespread interest. Since the members of that unit are well known to Lowell people, the pleasing sidelights thrown upon its activity on foreign soil will make many fond memories.

Borer Warning

Although the U. S. department of agriculture had posted notices to the effect that Lowell and all its surrounding towns were infested with the European corn borer this year the farmers in Dracut have experienced little difficulty from that source. The notices announced the following facts as subject to restriction on account of the borer: corn and brown corn, celery, green beans in the pods, and with tops, spinach, rhubarb and eye straw, cut flowers or entire plants of chrysanthemums, aster, cosmos, zinnia, hollyhock and cut flowers or entire plants of gladiolus and dahlia. Since no trouble has been experienced so far the farmers expect none in the future as the borer's season for destruction has passed.

Farm Help Scarce

Farmwork is practically at a standstill, both because the planting season nearly passed and on account of the scarcity of labor. Conversation with the farmers of Dracut will reveal the fact that they expect a shortage of crops on their part because they cannot get the men to till the ground.

But despite all this, sentiment is closely following the Chicago convention and the opinion of prominent Dracut residents is that the town is strong for Wood.

Dog Killing Order

The selectmen of the town have issued warrants to the police officers to kill all unlicensed dogs and have given notice that failure or neglect of any owner or keeper of a dog to license it immediately will be dealt with accordingly. As the last date for the licensing of dogs has long since expired the notice is considered final.

SOCIAL AND DANCE

A social and dance was held last evening in Thomas Talbot hall, North Billerica, under the auspices of the S. S. club and the affair was a success in every way. In the early part of the evening entertainment numbers were given and later general dancing was started and continued till a seasonable hour. Those who figured in the program were Ambrose Ready, J. O'Regan, Matthew Shay, Edward Matthews, James Jones and others. Those responsible for the success of the party were as follows: Thomas J. Knight, general manager; G. Kenney, assistant; W. Shyssey, treasurer; J. O'Brien, floor director; J. Gauvran, chief aid; J. Noonan, J. Connor, A. Constantinou, I. Sawyer, B. Johnson, A. Ready, W. Hardman, B. Taylor, A. Whistley, A. Paradis and N. Tessier.

LEGAL NOTICES

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Middlesex:
Respectfully, I, William H. Forney, do hereby certify that I am the husband of Louis E. Forney, now of Memphis, County of Shelby, and State of Tennessee, who was last seen by me on the sixth day of October, A.D. 1909, and thereafter I have been faithful to her marriage vows and obligations, but the said Louis E. Forney being wholly regardless of the bonds of matrimony which he contracted with me, and the said Louis E. Forney, and that suitable orders may be made relative to support, care and custody of said minor child.

That the following child has been born in this marriage, Thelma J. Forney, born July 21st, 1901.
That said child has lived in this Commonwealth for a period of more than three years, next prior to the filing of this libel.

Therefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Louis E. Forney, and that suitable orders may be made relative to support, care and custody of said minor child.

Dated this first day of June, A.D. 1920.

ETHEL M. FORNEY.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts—Middlesex, ss. Superior Court.

Upon the foregoing libel ordered that the libellant notify the libellee to appear before our Justices of said Court, at Cambridge, in said County, on the first day of July next, by causing an attested copy of said libel and of the order thereon, to be published in "The Lowell Sun," a newspaper published in Lowell, in the County of Middlesex, once a week, three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said last mentioned day, and that an attested copy of said libel and order thereon be sent by registered letter to the residence of the libellee as set out in the said libel, may then and there show cause, if any he have, why the prayer in said libel set forth should not be granted.

WM. C. DILLINGHAM, Clerk.

A true copy of the libel and of the order thereon.

WM. C. DILLINGHAM, Clerk.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts—Middlesex, ss. Probate Court.

To the heirs-at-law, next of kin, creditors and other persons interested in the estate of Florin E. Prouty, late of Lowell, in said County, deceased, intestate.

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court to grant a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased to Florin E. Prouty of Lowell, in the County of Middlesex, without giving a surety on her bond.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Lowell, in said County of Middlesex, on the twenty-ninth day of June, A.D. 1920, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And the petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week for three successive weeks in "The Lowell Sun," a newspaper published in Lowell, the last publication to be one day at least, before said court.

Witness, George E. Lawton, Esquire, first Judge of said Court, this eleventh day of June, in the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty.

F. M. ESTY, Register.

At Nos. 86-88 Dummer street is a cottage property containing 10 rooms, five rooms on each floor and toilet, city water, etc., occupied by the one tenant who pays $15 per month, or $180 per year. In the rear of the above at No. 13, is a dwelling of the cottage type, containing six rooms and two attics, with toilet and city water.

At Nos. 90-92 Dummer street is a two-tenement house and store property; the store with two rooms and toilet, gas and city water, on first floor; six rooms on second floor, and three attics on the floor above, rented to the one tenant who pays $20 per month or $240 per year. At No. 4 in the rear is the other tenement of five rooms, toilet, city water, etc., rented at $6 per month or $72 per year, making a total rent for the building of $26 a month or $312 per year.

At Nos. 6-8 in the rear of No. 92 Dummer street is a block of four tenements, two tenements of three rooms and two tenements of four rooms, toilet, city water, etc. one tenement rented at $6 per month, or $72 per year; the other tenements with a little outlay could be made to rent for an equal amount which would show an income for this building of $24 per month or $288 per year.

At Nos. 102 and 110 Dummer street is a three-story structure, containing 12 tenements, six tenements of five rooms, and six tenements of four rooms, toilets, city water, etc. Tenements are rented, eight tenements at $2.25 per week each, and four tenements at $2 per week each, making a total income for the building of $26 per week or $1352 per year.

The lot has sewer, gas and water connections, and is of good dimensions; has a splendid area of about 22,840 square feet, with a magnificent frontage on Dummer street of about 200 feet, and an average depth of approximately 55 feet, thereby enabling the erection, if one so desired, of a modern mercantile building, and with its location in the very center of industry, within 250 feet of City Hall, it can rightly be termed a downtown business location. With the completion of the Cardinal O'Connell Parkway, it gives to this property an unobstructed view of, and entrance from Merrimack street.

The premises, at present, have an actual income of $2192 per year, and with the expenditure of a reasonable amount on the unoccupied portions, can be made to return a much greater revenue.

This sale is of unusual importance, being a downtown property with many advantages for future development, owing to its character and lot area, and should especially attract real estate investors and operators, as the opportunity is seldom, if ever, offered to purchase at open competition a property of this magnitude, and especially in this particular era.

TERMS:—$2000 must be paid to the auctioneer, just as soon as the property is struck off. Other terms made known at sale.

By order of PERCY PARKER.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION

"Silent Policemen," Ruled Traffic Constructors—Decision Against City

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 12.—"Silent policemen" so-called, used at street intersections for traffic purposes, have been deemed to be traffic obstructions by the Connecticut supreme court of errors, in a decision just rendered. An automobile driven by an attorney collided with a "sentinel." He and other occupants of the car had slight injuries and the machine was damaged. A verdict of $3500 against the city of New Haven was appealed but was upheld by the highest court.

SEN. PENROSE HAS A TURN FOR WORSE

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—The prolonged strain of the republican convention has caused a sudden turn for the worse in the condition of Senator Penrose.

Reports to this effect were spread throughout the city today. Color was given them by the announcement that two of the senator's physicians were in attendance at his home early this morning.

HOLD CONFERENCE ON WAGE INCREASE

Representatives of the Trades and Labor Council and engineers and firemen of the city water works were in conference today with Commissioner John F. Salmon relative to wage increase for these classes of employees. The engineers ask for an additional $2 per week, while the firemen request a raise from 63½ to 75 cents an hour.

The commissioner frankly told the men that full compliance with their demands at the present time was absolutely impossible, but that he would go as far as the financial condition of the department allowed. He further stated that by July 1 he would be able to tell how much of an increase he could grant in each instance. The finances of the department were explained at length and the commissioner stressed the point that he would give every possible consideration to the demands of the men. At the present time two head engineers in the department receive $12 a week, with assistant engineers receiving $17. A flat $3 increase is requested.

One man chiseled a hole in the side while the vessel was floating bottom up and got out safely. A passing excursion steamer picked up the survivors and landed them at the Philadelphia navy yard.

EXHIBIT AT CHAFFOUX'S

On the third floor of the Chaffoux store the directors of the girls' sewing and millinery department of the Girls' Community Service club have arranged a very elaborate exhibition of the handwork of these free classes done between October, 1918, and June, 1920. The samples display some of the finest work done during the year and are drawing many admirers. Scarfs, millinery, dresses and other articles are shown. Those who have their work in the display are: Mary Hughes, Julia Skanley, Alice Sullivan, Mrs. Flanders, Mrs. Nellie Johnson, Miss Susie Stanton, Emma Denvers, Vera Walsh, Mary Smith, Nellie Chaysman, Loretta Baron, Mary Killroy, Mary Farquharson, Mary Ready, Bessie Belinsky, Grete Fields, Miss Anna Ryan and Mary Greenhalgh.

NAVY ENLISTMENTS

The local navy recruiting station stands second in the number of enlistments made by sub-stations of this district during the past week. Lynn comes first with 5, Lowell second with 6, Worcester third with 5 and Malden fourth with 4. Three men were enlisted this morning, Albert E. Watson of 9 Atlantic street, Lowell, as a fireman, third class, for the gas engine school; Francis Foley of 144 Abbot street, as an apprentice seaman for the electrical school, and George Hoslin of 9 Westford street, as an apprentice seaman. Hoslin is 17 and enlisted for the minority cruise until he becomes 21 years of age. He had his parents' consent.

BUTLER OF NEW YORK RELEASES DELEGATES

COLISEUM, Chicago, June 12.—Nicholas Murray Butler released his delegates today and a caucus of the New York delegation showed this way: Lowden, 41; Wood, 24; Harding, 9; Coolidge, 6; Butler, 4; Hoover, 3; Johnson, 3; Polkexter 1 and W. J. Ward, the Westchester county leader, 1.

TWO "TRUSTIES" AT AUBURN PRISON ESCAPE

AUBURN, N. Y., June 12.—Ambrose Garry and Frank O'Brien, sergeant-at-arms and deputy, respectively, of the Mutual Welfare league in Auburn prison, escaped from the prison some time last night. Both men were trustees and enjoyed special privileges owing to their high positions in the convict honor system.

DEATH ENDS OLD JIM'S SUFFERINGS

After 17 years of faithful service, "Jim" an apparently sound horse of the city street department, has passed beyond as the result of an order of the humane department. "Jim" really has been used at the city ledge and while it was known that he contracted ligament trouble about three years ago, his drivers were not conscious of any suffering on his part until the humane society agent examined him a day or two ago and ordered that he be shot.

Commissioner Murphy said this morning that it will cost $400 to replace him and that if the department was to be properly equipped with horses, at least eight more would be required.

CHILD HIT BY AUTO
Jennie Matyk, aged 4 years and residing at 15 Spring street, was knocked down and slightly injured by an automobile, yesterday afternoon. The accident occurred in South street, near the corner of Spring street, the machine being owned and operated by Walter E. Boynton of 1514 Bridge street, Dracut Centre.

The police force in Great Britain is practically the only one in the world that is not armed.

CAPITAL--

Capital is seldom acquired by any person who does not work and save—the exceptions to this rule being rare indeed. Every sum of money, however small, represents the earning power of a certain amount of capital for a definite period of time. Savings accounts are among the greatest builders of capital in the world. ### KILL THE MOSQUITOES

Save Life and Secure Comfort By Fighting the Pest Now

BY U. S. PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE
Do you realize that now is the time to get busy in order to assure yourself freedom from the mosquito nuisance in summer?

About this time of the year, mosquitoes begin breeding in swamps, sheltered pools, standing water in old tin cans, barrels or boxes, or other suitable places. The eggs are usually laid on the surface of the water and after about a week hatch out into wiggle-tails, which swim around in the water.

In the south, this mosquito breeding is now well under way; in the north, it is just beginning. If you have never studied how mosquitoes breed, just hunt around until you find some standing water in which there are wiggle-tails. You will observe that many of them are at the surface of the water, apparently suspended by a tiny tail. They remind one of a submarine using a periscope. This "periscope," however, is really a breathing tube, for the wiggle-tails are compelled to come to the surface to breathe.

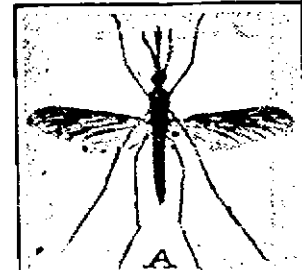

Scientists have discovered that these breeding mosquitoes can be drowned, or choked to death, by covering the surface of the water with a thin film of kerosene or fuel oil, and "drowning" is therefore one of the important methods of fighting the mosquito nuisance.

When the wiggle-tails are not molested they change, after a few days, into "tumblers," curious looking animals with a large head surmounted by one or more horns. These horns are the breathing tubes of the tumblers. The tumblers continue to live in the water very much like the wiggle-tails, swimming about and coming up to the surface for air. After a few days more, the tumbler comes to the surface, splits open, and out comes the living mosquito with which you are familiar.

Since mosquito breeding goes on only in water, an effective way to fight mosquitoes is to get rid of standing water by filling, draining or ditching, or by covering such water with a film of oil.

In dealing with the pesky house mosquito, the one with that tenting song, it is well to look around in the back yard for old tin cans, bottles, barrels, boxes and other trash in which rain water has collected, for these are favorite breeding places of this variety. In cities, an obstructed roof gutter is often to blame for mosquito breeding.

The United States Public Health service has published an instructive bulletin on mosquitoes. You can obtain a copy free of charge by writing to the information editor, United States Public Health Service, Washington, D. C., asking for supplement No. 18.

There are three kinds of mosquitoes that make most of the skelter trouble for man. The only really dangerous skelter (in the United States) is Anopheles (labeled "A" in pictures above). This is the malarial mosquito, carrying malarial germs, and is the only cause for malarial fevers, especially deadly in low countries, along rivers and the seaboard.

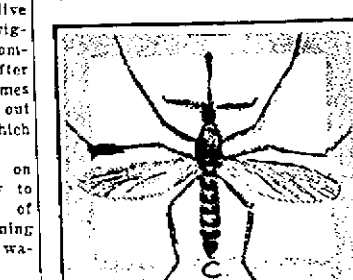

This mosquito (only the female bites) acquires malarial germs by biting a person having malarial parasites in the blood. These parasites are thus conveyed to another person, by biting that person. The Aedes ("B") mosquito is the most numerous in the United States, especially in the south. It is a day worker, while the Anopheles seldom comes near a person by day. The Culex ("C") is another day and evening worker, busy all the time, but not as dangerous to health as the malarial or yellow fever skelters. The Culex is noted as the prevalent of mosquitoes, the males having more plumage than other skelters.

Aedes, though, doesn't go to sleep early, and will bite as long as there's anything to bite around. This is the yellow fever mosquito, carrier of yellow fever germs in tropical countries.

The Culex ("C") is another day and evening worker, busy all the time, but not as dangerous to health as the malarial or yellow fever skelters. The Culex is noted as the prevalent of mosquitoes, the males having more plumage than other skelters.

Anopheles are the homeliest skelters, also, they make less noise and give less pain in the biting. But, while their bites are painless, they more than make up by leaving a trail of malarial fever in their wake.

They lay the eggs upon the surface of the water. These are hatched into larvae, or "wiggle tails." A few days later, these are transformed into pupae, or "tumblers," which turn into mosquitoes. All this happens from egg to skelter in less than 16 days.

Culex skelters hatch in rain barrels, pools, puddles, etc., near the house. Aedes usually make their appearance from tin cans or other containers partly filled with water after a rain. Anopheles skelters are the cleanest of the lot. They come from clean, shady, grassy pools in the country.

Not one male mosquito in a million will bite. The males are perfectly harmless pets to have round one. But the female of the species! My goodness, how she can—and does—bite!

The female skelter is a homely insect, without the pretty plumage of the male, intended by nature for the laying of eggs for future generations of skelters and for biting. They lay the eggs upon the surface of the water. These are hatched into larvae, or "wiggle tails." A few days later, these are transformed into pupae, or "tumblers," which turn into mosquitoes. All this happens

40,000 RUSSIAN SOVIETS TRAP POLISH FORCES

WARSAW, June 11.—(By Associated Press)—Russian Bolshevik cavalry in the drive southwest of Kiev designed to encircle that city, have cut the railroad between Kiev and Berditchev, at several places and have pierced the Polish front lines at various points, according to news from the front. The soviet forces are reported to number from 30,000 to 40,000 strong and one body of their cavalry numbers 8000 men.

This leaves the Poles with but a single line of railroad into Kiev. In addition the Kiev-Korosten line is threatened by a division of Bolsheviks which has crossed the Dniester river north of Kiev.

Heavy fighting continued on both sides of the city and infantry is in action all along the front.

Tag Day for the Babies

Continued

Trians began to pass and a considerable number stopped to drop a coin in the box held by Miss Pilling and receive the decoration of a tag that rendered them immune from solicitation during the rest of the day.

About 8:45 Miss Pilling returned to the tag day headquarters in the hall of the Middlesex Women's club in Palmer street. There was so much curiosity to see "what kind of a worm this early bird has caught," as one of those present expressed it, that the box was immediately opened and it was found to contain $34.

The other boxes are not to be opened until all have been returned to headquarters when they will be taken in charge by Edward B. Carney of the Lowell Institution for Savings.

By 2 o'clock the streets in the center of the city were liberally sprinkled with attractive young women solicitors in summer garb with placards on their backs reading "Baby Day, Lowell Guild, Save the babies."

The young women were under the supervision of members of the finance committee to each one of whom had been assigned a particular section of the city or a specified building to look after.

Promptly at 11:30 a dozen nurses form the guild and the Red Cross took up their places at the exits from the mills, and as the employees poured out at the end of their week's work a goodly sum was dropped into the boxes of the solicitors. The nurses all wore their uniforms.

Leading the nurses was Mrs. Catherine Kuhlman, superintendent of the guild. The other nurses were Miss Elsie Smith, Miss Campbell, Miss Hill, Miss Mary Sheahan, Mrs. Hewitt, Miss Wainman, Miss Elsie McCloud, Miss Helen Aaron, Miss Mary McCormack, Miss Beardon and Miss Stella Redmond.

The committee in charge of the day had provided 10,000 tags. Nearly an hour before noon, however, this supply was exhausted and it was necessary to send out an emergency call for more of the small squares of cardboard.

At noon the young women who had been soliciting funds—nearly 70 in all—began to arrive at headquarters for a luncheon that was ready for them. Serving the lunch was in charge of Mrs. E. N. Burke.

If plans that have been formulated are carried out a part of the funds gathered today will be used for opening on the commons and playgrounds during certain days of the week during the summer of stations at which nurses will be in attendance to give instruction for the proper treatment of sick and fretful babies. The remainder of the funds will be spent in carrying on the regular baby hygiene work of the guild.

Mrs. J. Gilbert Hill was in general charge of the tag day, and she was assisted by a committee made up of members of the finance committee, which includes the following named women: Mrs. E. D. Holden, Mrs. E. J. Hyman, Mrs. Josiah Butler, Mrs. John K. Whittier, Mrs. Boyden Pillsbury, Mrs. Thomas Nesmith, Jr., Mrs. Albert W. Thompson, Mrs. Harry G. Pollard, Mrs. Orla L. Humphrey, Mrs. W. L. Robertson, Mrs. H. K. White, Mrs. E. J. Carney, Mrs. Charles L. Stover, Mrs. A. J. Munkland, Miss Ruth Pilling, Mrs. Frank Dunbar, Mrs. E. N. Burke, Mrs. Julian H. Keyes and Mrs. J. G. Hill.

SPROUL PROPOSED AS NEW M'KINLEY

CHICAGO, June 12.—Selection of an eastern candidate for the presidency has become a matter of importance, Mayor J. Hampton Moore of Philadelphia, told the republican national convention yesterday, in nominating William Cameron Sproul, governor of Pennsylvania.

"The great empire state now has a democratic governor," Mayor Moore said. "So has New Jersey, Ohio, Maryland and West Virginia. The situation is embarrassing to national republicanism. Pennsylvania is now in reality a republican oasis surrounded by normally republican states in a desert of democratic executives. And this on the eastern front, where republicanism hitherto has been regarded as impregnable."

"We cannot afford to further weaken this republican stronghold. The selection of an eastern candidate, therefore, becomes a matter of importance."

Recounting Pennsylvania's history, Mr. Moore said that "as it was the keystone of the arch in the beginning of this republic, so it is the keystone of the arch today."

"Pennsylvania has been the bulwark of republicanism, the anchor of our destiny in every national campaign," he said.

"In all fairness, the time has come when a candidate of the republican party qualified to be president of the United States should hail from Pennsylvania. We know we have the man."

"In common with her sister states, Pennsylvania seeks the overthrow of this seven years' blight that has shocked our American institutions and burdened our people."

"Pennsylvania realizes that a young man is needed and it presents a candidate who is in good health; who is physically fit; who mixes with the people and knows their hopes and ambitions."

Mayor Moore said Gov. Sproul was known as "the father of good roads."

He told of the many laws that had been simplified since the governor entered office, and referred to the governor as a "modern McKinley," whose election to the presidency would assure the country of an early and sane resumption of normal business.

GREAT CROWD GOES TO PARK FOR BOUTS

All roads led to Spaulding park this afternoon when boxing fans from Lowell and surrounding towns went to the ball grounds to attend the first open-air bouts of the season.

The interest in the Boyle-Downes bout for the New England lightweight championship proved the magnet to attract scores of the sport from many distant places.

Merrimack came up from Lawrence, Haverhill, Boston and elsewhere and a steady stream of cars and autos was heading out East Merrimack street from the noon hour well into the afternoon.

Merrimack square was crowded with people and early indications were that the largest crowd that ever attended a bout in this city would be on hand when the principals stepped into the ring.

The principals in the main bout weighed in at 11 o'clock this morning at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium, and both were under the stipulated weight, 136 pounds.

Maffitt Maherty of Boston was agreed up as the referee.

NEWS OF THE DAY IN POLICE COURT

Herbert C. Lough, charged with keeping at an unlawful game for money or Pyne street and also with being concerned in setting up a lottery and playing at an unlawful game for money or other property, was called in police court today and was held in $200 for his personal appearance next week Saturday for trial.

The complaint against Lough was made by Francis Moore, one of the inspectors who visited the Pyne street house on Tuesday night and seized 18 slot machines. The charge of setting up a lottery is based on the fact that Lough is said to be the agent for the machines in this section and had distributed some of them to merchants in this city, and the other complaint upon the possession of them.

In following up the clues to the Lough case the inspectors traced the distribution of two machines, which resemble the well known ball game machines, to the premises of Joseph Miller on Chelmsford street and of Laurent Grennon on Moody street.

In these places the machines were set up for operation by the public and the owners were brought in on the charge of keeping gaming implements on their premises and likewise held in $200 each for their personal recognizance on June 15.

BE DRY IN 1925

BOSTON, June 12.—A "dry" Europe by 1925 is the prediction made by Mrs. Ella A. Gleason of Winchester, state president of the W.C.T.U. In an interview yesterday after her return from the world convention of the W.C.T.U. in London. Drinking conditions in England and France, Mrs. Gleason termed "deplorable," yet the visit of the American temperance workers was quite unpopular with the British, and the Yankee women were called "hussy footers" right and left by Britishers who hung around their headquarters.

"In France there is a saloon at almost every door. In Paris, just around the corner from the President Wilson bridge, is the Pont du President Wilson bar. It's deplorable, the less said the better. The flower of France is under the sod and if the country is to be saved, the women are going to do it."

Mrs. Gleason said the W.C.T.U. is raising $1,000,000 to carry on its program for world prohibition, and more than $800,000 of the Massachusetts $37,200 quota has already been raised.

"Although our movement is not popular with the rank and file of the British," she said, "it is encouraging that some of the nobility are with us, and when they begin to realize what prohibition has done for us here, they will accept it. In Scotland they are doing wonderful work. Temperance measures are up everywhere. They seem to have a horror of the drink which the British do not have."

"The thinking men of Europe already have perceived the results of prohibition in the United States, and they realize that a drunken Europe can never become successfully against a sober America."

Mrs. Gleason said chaotic conditions exist in France, the nation still staggering from the effects of the war, whereas the people of Belgium are recovering rapidly. Devastation in many cities contrasts, she said, with the present appearance of Belleau Wood which has entirely grown up again and concealed its battle scars.

She said that if American women could only see the beautiful cemetery in which their sons' bodies rest, they would support to the hilt the prohibition in the United States, and they realize that a drunken Europe can never become successfully against a sober America."

SALES BY F. F. SLATTERY, JR.

Edward F. Slattery, Jr., Strand building, reports the following sales made through his office during the past week:

Final papers have been placed on record in the sale of the property situated at 993 Varnum avenue. The property consists of a practically new house containing six rooms and all modern conveniences. Over a half acre of land is contained in the deed. The sale was made for George S. Emery and the buyers are Philip P. Lord and Ida A. Lord, who buy for personal occupancy.

Also the sale of the property situated at 329 Concord street, Belvidere. The house contains nine rooms and is equipped with steam heat, electricity and bath. About 5000 square feet of land is contained in the deed. The sale was made in behalf of the estate of Sarah P. Burns, while the purchaser is John J. Kline, who will reside there.

FEAST OF SACRED HEART

The annual communion of the members of the C.M.A.C. in observance of the feast of the Sacred Heart, will take place tomorrow morning, at the 7 o'clock mass, at St. Jean Baptiste church. The members will gather in their quarters in Pawtucket street, at 6:30 o'clock, and will march to the church in a body. At the close of the mass they will return to their hall, where a breakfast will be served, followed by post prandial exercises during which speeches will be made by Henri V. Charbonneau, Arthur L. Eno, Representative Henri Achin, Xavier Delisle, secretary to Congressman Rogers, Frank Ricard and others.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY HOST

Dist. Atty. Nathan A. Tufts of Middlesex county was host yesterday when he tendered the members of the grand jury a dinner at the Point Shirley club, Winthrop. The party left the courthouse early in the afternoon and the journey was made by automobiles. Judge Philip O'Connell, who is presiding in the superior criminal court, was the special guest of the afternoon. There were remarks by Dist. Atty. Tufts, Judge O'Connell, Sheriff John R. Fairbairn and County Commissioner Walter C. Wardwell. About 50 were present.

RAIDS AND ARRESTS

Local and Federal Officers Make Series of "Booze" Raids Here

Since they have been busy in other sections, the visit of the federal prohibition officers yesterday to this city was the first for some time, and the first work performed by Officer O'Dea since his automobile accident in Buffalo, N. Y. In co-operation with the local police, represented on the raiding squad by Inspectors Wian and Clark, they made five arrests, captured two stills in operation, three detached stills, several gallons of "moonshine" and five barrels of mash. One of the stills was worked by a woman who admitted the sole responsibility, and the other by a baker who, it is alleged, sold one of the officers a bottle of liquor before the raid was made. The owners of the stills in operation were held in bonds of $1000 and the other three in bonds of $500.

Officers Hurley, Connolly and O'Dea were the prohibition officers participating and their first raid was about 2 o'clock on a house in Whipple street, where the owner admitted to making moonshine. The parts of a still, found in the place, were sent into headquarters.

The paraphernalia of a 20 gallon still was found during the next raid on the house occupied by Manuel Fernandez in Cherry street. Besides fifteen gallons of mash, the officers found the coil which was hidden in the chimney. Then parts of another still and 20 gallons of mash were seized in a house on Union street occupied by Anthony Gouvela. No "moonshine" was found in this case.

One of the two stills found in operation was in the home of Laurine Menzes, a woman, in back Central street, who admitted her guilt as the owner and operator. Here, three gallons of "moonshine" and 25 gallons of mash were seized in the raid about 5:30 p. m.

Three barrels of mash were found about 5:20 o'clock in the bakery of Costas Krakes in Market street, and in a neighboring shed another barrel of mash and a still in operation, with five gallons of "moonshine" and 30 gallons of molasses. Before the raid, Officer Connolly, it is alleged, visited the bakery and bought a pint of liquor for $1.

The defendants have been released on the bail mentioned above and will appear before the federal court in Boston for trial. All the apparatus of the various stills has been taken to Boston by the federal officers.

Women are sitting as delegates in the republican national convention at Chicago for the first time. Twenty-six of them have been selected—less than one to a state—out of the 983. Above are four of a kind—a quartette of women delegates who'll help name G. O. P. nominee.

Our Mary Hates Her Curls and Would Be a Vamp—
But Husband "Doug" Likes Her Best in Sport Clothes"I'M GOING TO BE A VAMPIRE!"
AND MARY EXHIBITED A TALL,
BLACK VELVET HAT

MARY PICKFORD

IMPRESSIONISTIC DRAWINGS BY DJUNA BARNES

BY DJUNA BARNES

NEW YORK, June 12.—"I think the psychology of the tressouss is, or should be, frailty," Mary Pickford paused, looked up from under her demure lashes and added, "But Doug likes sport clothes—he says the wedding dress should be tailor-made, and have pockets."

She was sitting among her gowns in her suite in the Ritz—looking from one bewildering creation to the other, all very bright as to color, very, very feminine, and very, very un-sportlike. "Do you think a girl should spend as much money on her tressouss as possible?" she was asked.

She nodded her bright little head. "Yes, even to the point of foolishness—because there's one time in a girl's life when she should not count the costs and that time is the day that she decides to get married."

Doug Likes Cowboy Outfit

"Now I," she went on, showing a lovely gown of white satin and over-drape of net, caught up with contrasting knots of green and mustard. "Never thought that this was to be my wedding dress, but it just naturally followed that with a beautiful thing like this in the house, I simply had to get married."

Mr. Fairbanks chimed in at this moment with: "I wanted Mary to come away with me, on horseback, and get married somewhere in a quiet spot away from me, on horseback, and get to wear a cowboy's clothes and sombrero—but she was afraid that the whole world would be there with its cameras—so we had to get married behind closed doors."

Mary was by this time making signs for Doug to leave the room. When he had gone she whirled upon a tall black velvet hat—a cape of gray felt and a collar of black and white woolly looking stuff, and hissing "Gee!" she paused dramatically.

A tall, strange looking French woman put her head around the door. "Come in a moment, quick," whispered Mary Pickford. "Now put these on," she commanded—"for this one interview at least must see what I shall look like and what I shall wear when no one is looking." For, after Mary, turning the French maid around and around, "I am going to be a vampire!"

Sick of Curls

"You're sick of curls," sympathized the interviewer. "I hate them," said Mary. "I hate them like all hell. I make those world famous curls in my sleep, over and over my finger they go all night long—some day, I shall wear my hair straight, Doug likes it best that way, and perhaps I shall ever dye it black. I'm so tired of being blond."

Do you design your own clothes?

"Oh yes; now here is one, you can see for yourself that I designed it—green organdie with hand-embroidered rosebuds and a darker bodice of emerald."

"Do you think women dress to please men?"

"Only after they have achieved the man. Before that they dress to please women because it's safest."

Men Like Black and White

"But though my husband likes sport clothes he does have to admit that evening clothes have to be evening clothes—so there you are," she said, laying out two delightful gowns, one black and white, and one white and black.

"But does he not like gay colors for the evening?"

She shook her head. "All white or all black, or a little of both—that's what all men like. So here goes—white satin, with an overskirt of black lace, a few Chinese flowers at the girdle, a streamer of blue—then this of black chiffon with silver roses and the little apron of white lace—and here, under the skirt, three bows of magenta. That's as far as I can go and not be called down."

And hats?

"Sport hats," she answered, "small, dark, though very smart," she turned a model on her little hand. "It's pink and it's made of ribbon and it's terribly becoming, but—" She tossed it back into the closet. "It would not stay on in an airplane—and that's the kind he likes."

Then she called to her husband.

LOWELL MAN HELD

FOR GRAND JURY

TAUNTON, June 12.—Manuel F.

Cottar, of 125 Charles street, Lowell, was found probably guilty of manslaughter yesterday, in the district court, by Judge Austin, and held for the grand jury.

Cottar was the operator of an automobile which struck and killed four-year-old Irene Gady on Middleboro avenue, Memorial day.

Cottar testified that the child ran out from the sidewalk in front of his car, and he was unable to prevent a collision. He said he was not driving fast.

NEW BATHING SUITS
ARE QUITE SMART

BY CORA MOORE

NEW YORK'S Fashion Authority. NEW YORK, June 12.—Beach costumes and bathing suits for this coming season are all glorious things. Colorful, yet conservative, these "water-clothes" are picturesque in the extreme, and in Victor Herbert's "My Golden Girl" this is all emphasized in quite the delightful manner the stage has of showing us fashions.

The suit the artist sketched from the play is of white dancette satin with a border trimming of dark blue satin applique dots. The sash is emerald green, swirled twice around the waist. Shoes and cap are of the satin while the hose is marked off in blue hairline diagonal checks. The tunic, be it noticed, is caught with a rubber at either side to hold it down.

EXAMINATIONS FOR
CLERICAL SERVICE

Special to The Sun. STATE HOUSE, Boston, June 12.—Examinations for positions in the clerical service of the state and of all cities and towns will be conducted by the civil service department next month.

Applicants living in and near Boston will be examined July 16 in Boston, and for those living at a distance from Boston examinations will be held July 24 in Fall River or New Bedford; Fitchburg, Lowell or Lawrence; Pittsfield or North Adams; Springfield and Worcester.

All appointments to office, institutional and similar positions will be made, during the next year, from the list of those passing the forth-coming examinations. Persons qualifying may have their names placed on the list for appointment in the state service, as well as in the service of the city or town of their residence.

The examination will include applicants for four grades of employment. Grade I including all positions paying less than $540 per year; Grade II, positions paying from $540 to $1250; Grade III, from $1250 to $1500; and Grade IV, from $1500 to $1800. There is also in the state service a Grade V involving positions paying more than $1800, but no examination for such positions is to be held in the near future.

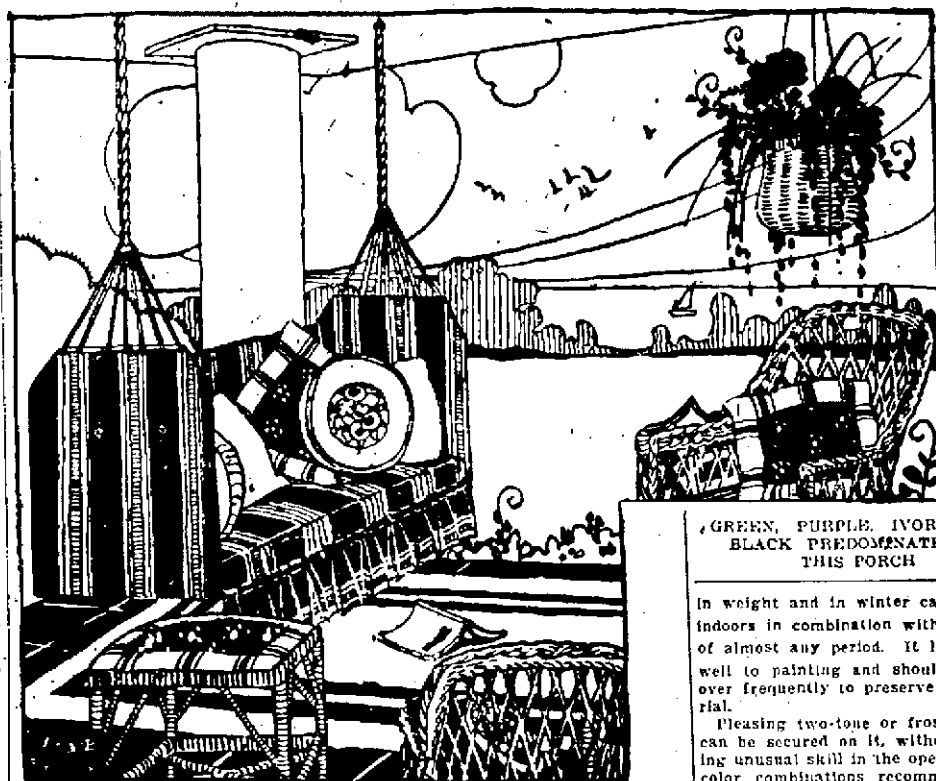

None but citizens of the United States who have been residents of Massachusetts for the past year have a right to take the examination.

THIS PORCHBY VIOLA FLEISCHMAN
Interior Decorator

CLEVELAND, June 10.—Make your porch an outdoor living room. Houses and apartments are built these days with as many windows as possible to permit of plenty of sunshine and fresh air. Why not furnish your porch so that you can live in the sunshine and air all the time the weather permits?

Get the full enjoyment that part of your house or apartment affords. With a comparatively small sum of money it can be made a comfortable and attractive lounging place, study nook or spot for informal entertaining.

The chief asset for comfort in furnishing the porch is a couch hammock. There is no more necessary piece and none which can be fitted up so effectively. Couch hammocks bought at present day prices are a luxury. It is true, but use your old one even though it be badly discolored, rusty and old in style. Dress it up with one of the attractive striped cretonnes, denims or linens.

Snap Fasteners

But first scrub the old canvas covering the ends and back with soap and water or any of the good cleaning powders or solutions. Then apply two coats of apple green gloss paint to the iron and wood frame. A fabric which would lend itself particularly well for the making of a slip cover carries stripes of varying width in blue, green, lavender, beige and black. The slip cover should be fashioned so that it can be held together with snap fasteners which permit of removing readily for laundering.

The hammock should be supplied with plenty of cushions, round, square, oval and oblong. They furnish support to the back and afford a pleasing decorative note. With the striped slip cover in colors previously mentioned there may be one or two round cushions of monk's cloth dyed a deep yellow with centre medallion of flowered cretonne repeating colors in the couch covering, also a few in other shapes made of green linen with purple worsted fringe.

Frosted Effects

Wicker ware is the most satisfactory for chairs and stools. It is cool, light in weight and in winter can be used indoors in combination with furniture of almost any period. It lends itself well to painting and should be done over frequently to preserve the material.

Mossing two-tone or frosted effects can be secured on it, without requiring unusual skill in the operation. The color combinations recommended are rich brown and gray, old rose and gray, dull blue and gray, dark green and ivory, etc. The dark color—usually a gloss paint which dries hard enough so that it will not come off on clothes—should be applied in one or two coats, as the surface may require. When dry apply roughly over last coat the lighter paint, working it well into the deep closely braided parts and before this coat becomes dry wipe it off the high places, allowing it to remain in the deep crevices.

Green and Ivory

For the color scheme in question a green and ivory combination would be suitable for the wicker furniture. The cushion pads could be upholstered with the same material as the hammock cover or with cretonne carrying its colors.

A bowl of cut flowers, a potted plant and a hanging basket filled with ivy, geraniums and decorative grasses add further interest.

As a floor covering a grass rug is cool and practical. For the scheme worked out one in tans would be desirable, with the floor painted a dark brown.

sona non grata could be killed off decently, or a peer-do-well could retrieve himself, but all that is now done and gone. Magazines have put the ban on war stories, and already the fiction pages are showing the effects of it. The type of story now to be round seems almost banal, coming after the stirring action of warfare. There is opportunity for a new type of fiction just now, and it will be interesting to see how the really big writers of the day meet the opportunity.

Ruffles and Other Things

The tiny ruffles which are stealing in upon our fashions are most beguiling, particularly to the thin girl who welcomes the plump effect they produce. They may be seen on neckwear, reefer, shirtwaists, skirts, gowns, lingerie, and even hats. They are the most truly feminine adjunct to a woman's wardrobe that can be devised. Some are gathered and others are knife-plaited. Many hesitate at the latter on account of the laundering, but those who know say that a plait should be made to press the tiny plaiting. Instead, the plaiting should be ironed out, producing a soft, ripple effect which is considered by many much more beautiful than the stiff little plait.

Strange as it may seem, the accordion plaited skirts, so beautiful and so popular just now, do not produce the appearance of stoutness in the wearer. I have seen women of quite generous proportions appear quite genteel in them. It must be that the perpendicular plaiting has the effect of many stripes, which, as is well known, add length to one's figure. Whatever the reason, the accordion plaited skirt is almost universally becoming, and its beauty is sufficient reason for a long run of popularity.

LADY LOOKABOUT.

Lady Lookabout

Each year it seems that the beauty of the sweater has reached its superlative degree. A year ago, who could imagine anything lovelier than the hand-knit sweater with its nicely arranged fullness and its well-studied scantiness? This year the sweater of tricotelle surpasses all others. Silk, thin, beautifully fitted, coloring dainty or rich, price fifty dollars. What more can the heart of woman crave? The price makes one sigh for the garment more than ever, for always the unattainable seems most desirable. A less expensive way than buying one of these garments, is to have it made from the tricotelle goods, but the amateur dressmaker must beware, for tricotelle is most difficult to work on, and even the best dressmakers avoid it when possible.

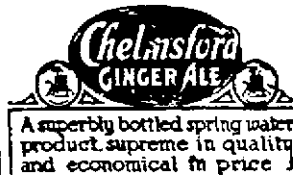

War Fiction Waning

The great boom given to written fiction by the late war has subsided. Much to the loss of said written fiction. One of the directions given to writers or would-be writers of stories by professors who profess to know the rules of the game, but whose names are seldom or never to be found among the lists of magazine contributors, is to place the characters of your story in such positions and relation that there seems no possible solution of the affair, then clarify the situation. The war offered endless opportunity for solving puzzling situations. If lovers quarreled and the suffering youth in the affair tore "over there" to forget his grief to the trenches, it was a poor author who could not make a nurse, or a can-can worker, or a vaudeville actress of the repentant sweetheart, and once in France, fate itself could not keep them apart. The world, after all, is such a small place, and France, with only 40,000,000 people of her own, plus several millions of fighting visitors, is such a tiny part of the world. How could the twain help meeting, and meet they did, invariably.

War Fiction Waning

Perhaps the third side of the eternal triangle persisted in obtruding himself too persistently. He may have been a prince among fellows and no sane reason could be found for killing him off, and accidents and sudden deaths are so trivial! Yet die he must in order that the remaining two may wed, for there are still among us persons who are such sticklers for propriety that they cannot conscientiously tolerate, even in fiction, more than one husband at the same time for the heroine. So when his number was called in the draft, off he went to war, and of course, to his death, a death so heroic and altogether picturesque that even the most puritanical stickler for monogamy couldn't improve the climax. He may have saved his squad, he may have captured single-handed and alone thirty or more boches. All that is beside the matter. The one great big thing was that he had shut off the mortal coil and made clear the way to matrimony for the other two.

So with the close of the war, fiction writers have lost a rich and endless source of possibilities. Always a per-

of the Harrison Hotel

While the erection of these big structures is going on there is not very much doing in the building of dwellings. Jacques Boisvert and Mr. Legault are building a few cottages in West Centralville, while Burton H. Wiggin is erecting two seven-room houses in Wentworth avenue. Harry Grennon is building a seven-room house at the corner of Warwick and Shaw streets.

N. Chama, who recently purchased the four-tenement building at the corner of Suffolk and Moody streets and the cottage adjoining this property in Moody street, is remodelling both structures. The Suffolk street property is being raised another story and is being converted into a six-tenement house with three stores on the street floor, while the cottage has been raised another story and when the alterations are finished it will contain two tenements and a store.

Fred Lavigne is converting the double house he recently purchased at the corner of Pawtucket street and Done avenue into a two six-room building with modern improvements. A great number of garages are being erected in various parts of the city, while minor repairs such as the building of piazzas are also being done.

Roux & Geoffroy, roofing contractors are busy with a gang of men in putting on a new slate roof on St. Joseph's church in Lee street. According to information gotten yesterday this is the first time this building has been treated to a new roof since it was erected some sixty or seventy years ago.

BIGGEST AND BEST MONEY CAN PRODUCE AT THE STRAND

FINE SUNDAY CONCERT

The usual big double-feature bills will characterize the semi-weekly offerings at The Strand the coming week. Instead of threatening to reduce our policy of providing the biggest and best that money can produce. That's why Strand patrons are always satisfied. Too much, rather than too little, is what we strive to give the patrons who pay the minimum price to witness our presentations. The Diamond ring contest is developing added interest daily and at the present time a number of contestants are showing activity in the total number of coupons registered in their favor. Don't forget to demand a coupon every time you purchase a ticket. Then vote for your favorite. The diamond ring, valued at $150, and secured through the Caesar Music Co., will be awarded on July 2. And don't forget that the new ventilating system at The Strand makes it possible to keep the temperature at normal at all times. That's why it's always cool and comfortable at this playhouse.

For the sacred concert on Sunday the management has succeeded in securing five acts of refined vaudeville and ten reels of the superior brand of pictures.

Beginning Monday and continuing through the first three days of the week Alice Joyce, a prime favorite with the local playgoers, will be seen in her latest film success, "Dollars and the Woman," and the other feature will be Edith Roberts in "Her Five-Foot Highness." Both are high-class photoplays.

"Dollars and the Woman" is a story by Albert Payson Terhune and the locale is New York—first picturing its society life, and later shifting to the East Side, where the young couple, reduced to circumstances, fight against poverty. Alice Joyce is the self-sacrificing wife, and Gordon the husband, selfish and self-centered without knowing it.

gives Walsh excellent opportunity for another demonstration of his remarkable skill as an athlete as well as an actor. It has a happy and pleasant love story and several interesting characters, to say nothing of a thrice of good humor that combine in making the whole thing most enjoyable. You will like the star and the picture immensely.

"THE COURAGE OF MARGE O'DOONE" AT THE OWL THEATRE

It isn't every one of us that has a past that he wants to forget. Most of us have peaceful lives over which we like to ponder and call them the good old days. Probably that is one of the reasons why we like to see some such picture as "The Courage of Marge O'Doone," which will be shown all next week at the Owl theatre at the usual popular prices.

In passing it may be said that James Oliver Curwood wrote the story, and that Vitagraph produced it as a special. First National found it so good it took it up, and thus it is that the Owl theatre gets it.

But to return to broken pasts, a young man named David Taine had one of these troublesome things. He was running away from it. He had the picture of a girl whom he did not know. She looked like the girl he had "north" somewhere. So when a young missionary invited him up into the country, to help him forget the past, David went alone, leaving a note that he might find the girl. In addition to finding himself.

He found the girl he found more. He found a mystery in the young missionary's life. He found a brute named Brokaw, who held the girl whose picture he had, in his power. Can you imagine Curwood telling that story? But probably you've read the story, for it was a best seller. If so, you will want to see the picture.

If you haven't read the story, you will want to see, at least, how David Taine found the girl and how the story unfolded. You remember the story of "The River's End." Well, this is something like that, only critics say it is much better than the picture.

But before the mountain top scene is a fight that you probably never will forget. Brokaw and David, "David and Goliath," if you will, are at it hammer and tongs in a bear cage. There is only one thing left for David to do, and that is the reverse knee-break, a secret of the frozen north. And David uses it.

David Smith is the director of this picture. Smith is a wonder at that game. What he doesn't do with wild animals in this film will probably never be done. He puts his human nature into some of the most lifelike work that has yet been seen. Pauline Stark, who whom critics said would never be a star, proves herself beyond the least of doubt. Indeed, she did that in this picture. That's why Smith picked her. Niles Welch, in the lead male part, brings some of his finest talents into play as David Taine. Jack Curtis as Brokaw, the brute, you're going to hate. Not because he wants you to but because he's a good actor. Curtis, like most big fellows, is as gentle as a lamb. The remainder of the cast is up to this standard.

The film was taken a few miles out of Truckee, in the Rocky mountains, and the bears are real Rocky mountain terrors. A blizzard raged while many of the scenes were taken, and the company suffered severe hardships. Remember, this picture will play all week, but the added attractions, of which there will be a usual generous quantity, will be changed on Thursday. Tomorrow there is a big Sunday bill with vaudeville of the highest class and feature pictures. Performances, as during weekdays, will be continuous. In making up your entertainment program, do not fail to include the Owl theatre. Think of it as "one place where I can see big pictures." You will see big pictures as long as the Owl theatre continues to offer long and feature pictures.

CHARLES RAY IN "PARIS GREEN" FEATURE AT THE MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Merrimack Square theatre patrons are assured of another excellent aggregation of features for next week's performances at the popular theatre. For the management has arranged an excellent program introducing some of the most popular feature pictures.

Starting off the week at the sacred Sunday concert will be Bryant Washburn always a welcome visitor to Lowell in "Something to Do" and "The Turn of the Road" with an all-star cast.

For Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the outstanding features will be Charles Ray, uphars the most popular male star on the screen today. In "Paris Green" is a story of the exceptional, out-of-the-ordinary type, and Robert Warwick, the soldier star, in "The City of Masks," a story of New York life.

Charles Ray is easily the most human, natural actor on the screen. In "Paris Green" is a story of the exceptional, out-of-the-ordinary type, and Robert Warwick, the soldier star, in "The City of Masks," a story of New York life.

How he discovers that she is the girl of his dreams, how he rescues her from kidnappers—how he makes love in his simple, boyish way, and how the picture unfolds, is a story of the exceptional, out-of-the-ordinary type, and Robert Warwick, the soldier star, in "The City of Masks," a story of New York life.

A comedy, the International News and a Chester Outline picture will follow the bill.

For Thursday, Friday and Saturday the leading features will be Wanda Hammer in "Miss Jones" and Elaine Hammer in "Whisperers."

B. F. KITH'S THEATRE

The vaudeville season at the B. F. Kith theatre will begin tomorrow with two performances, beginning respectively at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m. In the leading position on the day's program will be the two best known local musicians, David Boyle, a singer, and John Ball, a pianist. These boys are uncommonly talented, and their work is bound to meet with much approbation. They are headlined for the day, and will give a group of songs and piano numbers.

The remainder of the bill will consist largely of acts by persons who are more or less familiar to Lowell audiences. "Kee" Gallagher and Irene Martin will give much of their entertaining skill with music called "Sweeteners," and Bessie & Baird, when there are no funnier performers in vaudeville, will give the newest comedy side of good humor. This pair is very highly rated. Harry Austin Bond & Co. will offer a new brand of a light kind, and Howard & Ross are vaudeville who have the best novelty in an act of this kind yet put forward. Penn & Cavanaugh are comedy folk, and Gilman & Forrest will combine vaudeville with music. In addition, excellent pictures will be shown for the day.

COMMUNITY CLUB GIRLS ENTERTAIN

Members of the Girls' Community club scored a success last evening in Colonial hall when they presented the three-act comedy, "No Trespassing," before an interested and cordial audience. In spite of the fact that it was the first dramatic venture by the club girls, they handled themselves admirably under the capable direction of Miss Edith Erskine.

Between acts the Misses Dora and Marie Dewife entertained with fancy dances and there were vocal solos by Miss Sadie Melancon and Thomas Kelly. Six young men friends of the club assumed the male roles in the play.

The cast of characters follows:
Mrs. Palmer ..... Mae Hewson
Peggy Palmer ..... Anna O'Leary
Barbara Palmer ..... Anna Eagan

GIFTED YOUNG TENOR

Emmett O'Toole Tells of Reality of Irish Republic—Touching Incident

Mr. Emmett O'Toole, a young Irishman, who has already attained fame as a highly gifted tenor singer, is spending a brief vacation with the Kierce family on Pleasant street, the older members of whom knew the young singer's folks in Ireland. Mr. O'Toole is an ardent Sinn Féin and he tells a most encouraging story of the strong national spirit which has united practically the entire Irish people in support of the republic.

When asked what he thought of the British reports that the Irish republic exists only in the imagination of its friends, he replied:

"I am not surprised at any statement coming from British sources. England is trying to uphold her authority in Ireland by military force, by misrepresentation and falsehood, but with little success. Any man who goes to Ireland can soon find that the republican government is functioning throughout the land.

"True, the patriots cannot do as they please in all cases, nor conduct the affairs of the nation with as much publicity as they would wish on account of the presence of large military bodies, equipped with machine guns, lorries, tanks and hand grenades, but the hopelessness of maintaining British authority in Ireland is shown when every police officer must have a military escort and when soldiers are forbidden to move anywhere in groups of less than fifteen, lest they should be suddenly overpowered and disarmed.

"The government tried to suppress the republican flag, but the colors white, green and orange are visible everywhere. They are painted on dead walls, on farm wagons, and the flag itself is seen floating in so many places that the British forces have abandoned the task of tearing it down as hopeless. Where they pull down one flag half a dozen will appear the next day in the same vicinity.

"The secret service of the republic has found the police and soldiers in several murder plots and defeated them. The scheme was to murder prominent men opposed to the Sinn Féin in order to cast the odium upon the organization and confirm the statement of British officials in parliament that the Irish people are divided in numerous bands which are trying to annihilate each other.

"How about the Ulster men?" asked the reporter.

"Don't you believe that the Orangemen are all with the government," said Mr. O'Toole. "When Dr. McCarty recently visited his home in Ulster, he was shielded from the detectives by Orangemen and there are hundreds of Orangemen just as staunch Sinn Féiners as can be found anywhere. Mr. Carson and his followers stand out against the rights of Ireland, but their numbers are continually growing smaller. They are backed by the government, however, although they do not represent Ulster. The republic has won in Derry and in Tyrone and the sentiment is growing in Belfast.

"The Irish people are determined to have independence even if it be necessary to keep up the fight for the next five years, but it cannot be prolonged to that extent.

"The so-called home rule bill of Lloyd George is only a sham. It reverses majority rule and would give the Carsonite kickers a veto on the rights of the nation. The people will decide the kind of government they want."

Are you keen to return to Ireland?

"Oh! yes, after a concert tour of this country now in preparation."

Mr. O'Toole gave his services in the recent bond drive singing the songs of the Irish republic at Mr. De Valera's meetings.

A touching incident of Mr. O'Toole's experience in Boston is related by one of his friends. He received a pressing invitation from an aged man who said he knew the young man's people in Ireland. In responding, he found the man on his deathbed. "Mr. O'Toole," he said, "I hoped to live to see Ireland free, but I have but a short time to live now. I knew your father, a brave, good man. Now, I want you to tell me honestly is Ireland going to get her freedom out of this fight?"

"Most assuredly Mr. — I would stake my life on it," replied O'Toole.

"Will you sing me the new national anthem, 'The Soldier's Song'?" asked the sick man as he raised himself up in bed.

The song was sung with all the vim and fire of which the young man was capable.

"Thank God," the aged man exclaimed, "I know Ireland will be free. I can now die happy."

BRILLIANT CEREMONY

Newly Created Grandees of Spain to "Cover Themselves" on June 18

MADRID, June 11.—Newly-created grandees of Spain will on June 18 participate in the ancient ceremony of "covering themselves" or putting on their hats, in the presence of King Alfonso. Among the new noblemen will be Marquis Urgoiti, the Spanish banker, who negotiated in the United States a credit for Spain during the war.

The Duke of Miranda was advanced for his services as secretary to the king. Among those taking part will be the Duke of Saint Estena, uncle of King Alfonso, and Counts Elida and Gravia, ship owners of Bilbao. Heirs of old Grandees also will join in the ceremony.

Some of these titles have fallen into desuetude but are restored owing to the families working for the public welfare. All court officials will appear in gala uniforms at the ceremony, which has not occurred at the palace for many years.

TRANSFER OF PROPERTY

Final papers transferring the property of Dr. J. H. Roy at 141 Pawtucket street to Fred Lavigne were signed yesterday. This property consists of a 16-room house and 12,550 square feet of land, the building and land being assessed for $5390. Mr. Lavigne intends to convert the building into a three-tenement house, but work on the improvements will not be started until fall.

Spain is building the largest concrete ships in the world, one of 6000 tons having been launched recently

SPECIAL TOWN MEETING IN CHELMSFORD

At the special town meeting held in Chelmsford last night the "buck" was passed by the school committee to the selectmen, by the selectmen to the finance committee and finally by the finance committee to the selectmen, who kept it, and then everybody accused everybody else of "passing the buck."

The "buck passing" had to do with the proposition to appoint a committee to build a school in the Westlands. A motion was presented that a committee be appointed by the school committee to prepare plans and specifications for the new building and report at the next town meeting, but a member of the school committee objected, saying the matter should be handled by the selectmen, and he offered an amendment to that effect. Mr. Dunigan of the board of selectmen said in his opinion the finance committee should appoint the committee and as a result an amendment to the amendment was offered, but a member of the finance committee said his committee could not very well handle the matter as later it will be called upon to pass upon the action of the special committee and an amendment to the second amendment, harnessing the selectmen with throwing back the burden of the appointment of the committee, was presented and this last amendment was passed. It was then that charges of "passing the buck" were made. It seems that the action of the meeting was not clear to everybody, for as soon as the matter of who should appoint the committee was settled, one voter got up and requested the moderator to explain what had been done.

The meeting, which was attended by some 200 voters, was called for the purpose of hearing the report of the school committee on the recent survey of the town schools and act upon the recommendations of the board. Walter Perham was chosen moderator and for over three hours he was kept very busy. In the early part of the meeting Rev. Charles H. Ellis of the school committee presented the survey prepared by the committee, while Supt. of Schools Putney, with the aid of a chart, explained conditions as they exist in the various schools of the town. Dr. F. E. Varney, who also had prepared a chart of his own, discussed the conditions at the Princeton and Highland avenue schools, arguing that the latter schools might be made to serve more children and incidentally he criticized the transportation of high school children from various sections of the town to the Centre.

In the course of the meeting, when the matter of purchasing land in the Westlands for the erection of a new schoolhouse was discussed, it was brought out that the so-called Curtis land could not be purchased for less than a certain amount and at that point a member of the finance committee informed the meeting that J. Adams Bartlett owned land in the district which he was willing to sell at a fair price that the town would meet. He stated that this land was even better than the Curtis land for schoolhouse purposes. At this point one of the voters got up and charged the member of the finance committee of being in favor of the Bartlett land simply because he, the finance committee man, was in the real estate business.

When the meeting got right down to business an appropriation of $4500 was voted for a portable school. Some argued that portable schools had been tried in Boston and Lowell and had proved unsatisfactory. H. E. Ellis of the finance committee said in Lowell the portable schools were a success and he quoted Supt. Molloy of the Lowell schools as being satisfied with the tryout in Lowell. James P. Dunigan of the board of selectmen said he investigated the portable schools in Boston and he is satisfied that a portable school at Golden Cove would prove satisfactory. Members of the school committee were opposed to the motion, but it prevailed.

The sum of $510 was appropriated for plans and specifications for the erection of a four-room school building at the Westlands and the selectmen were ordered to appoint a committee to supervise the expenditure of the money. The sum of $3000 was raised for the purchase of land from J. Adams Bartlett for the erection of the above mentioned school. An appropriation of $7500 was voted for the purchase of additional furniture for schoolhouses, while $800 was voted for additional teachers. The meeting voted an appropriation of $1500 for fuel and extra janitor service at the town hall and Golden Cove school. The sum of $2500 was voted for the supplying of water at the East and South Chelmsford schools and the following committee was appointed: Harry Shedd, W. E. Lapham and J. E. Warren.

The sum of $125 was voted for five band concerts during the summer. Other appropriations were $50 for transportation and $50 for a flag in

BOIES' PHONE!

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—Will Rogers says: "If you want to know how presidential candidates are picked, look at this picture of the G. O. P. convention. Anyhow—Here's Boies Penrose's special, direct-line telephone, by which, from his home in Philadelphia, he directs the Old Guard moves at the Coliseum. At the phone is Penrose's "100 per cent efficient" secretary, Leighton C. Taylor, through whom Boies does his talking. The fade-out is Boies himself—"in the background" as it were.

detectives found that one of the maids employed by Mrs. Caruso had dinner in New York city with a man last Friday night, and that this man sailed for Italy last Tuesday, the day the theft was discovered by the ringing of a burglar alarm, which Dist. Atty. Young said was "staged."

Caruso today wired from Havana that he would return as quickly as possible, probably the first week in July. Mrs. Caruso wired him suggesting that a reward of $25,000 be offered.

Favor Harding as Dark Horse

son in the latter's private apartments, but the California senator described the visit as a "convention call." Details of the meeting were not disclosed. It gained significance because backers of the Harding movement are looking to Johnson supporters for aid if their plans materialize.

Contingent Upon Failure

The tentative plan of originators of the new Harding boom was contingent upon failure of early votes today to result in nomination of Wood, Lowden or Johnson. Among those with whom Senator Harding conferred during the night were Senators Wadsworth and Calder, New York; Brandegee, Connecticut; Smoot, Utah; William Barnes, Jr., and Ogden Mills of New York.

Big Three Managers Busy

Participants in these conferences and floor managers for Wood, Lowden and Johnson agreed that first ballots today would show increased strength for the leading candidates. The managers for the "big three" in no way relaxed their energy or lost confidence in success. Backers of the Harding compromise contended that no nomination could be reached as the situation now stands. They put forward their plan to meet this condition and believing that delegates would not remain over until Monday, necessitating action today.

The Harding boomers expected on early ballots to receive enough support in addition to the 61½ votes he polled on the last roll call yesterday to pave the way for a drive for his nomination later.

Seeks Johnson Support

Originators of the Harding compromise plan were known to be seeking support of the California senator's adherents if it became clear that Johnson could not be nominated. To insure strong reinforcements from that direction, some leaders urged during the night conferences that a ticket of Harding for president and Johnson for vice president be put forward. There was nothing to indicate that Senator Johnson would consent.

Coolidge for Vice President

Gov. Coolidge also was mentioned as a possible running-mate for Harding, should Senator Johnson elect to give his support but not his name to the ticket.

Either of these courses would maintain the veto power over convention action which has been claimed for the California senator from the beginning. Backers of the Harding boom claimed they could muster between 150 and 200 votes for Harding on an early ballot today, and that if Johnson could be induced to accept the vice presidential nomination on the compromise ticket, practically his entire strength could be swung into line.

Could Get New York Vote

The largest block of votes that was thought could be obtained for Harding, sponsors of the movement said, were in the New York delegation. Sixty New York delegates, it was said, at one conference could be swung to Harding at any time. Certain members of the delegation who are opposed to the move, said that they doubted if more than 40 could be away.

Opponents of the Harding plan declared they would fight it to a finish in a caucus of the New York delegation today.

Votes also could be drawn from Indiana, Pennsylvania and some of the New England and southern states, leaders of the Harding movement declared.

Whether Senator Penrose was aware of the new proposal was a moot question. At one conference, it was declared he was. This was denied later.

Wood Men To Stick

General Wood was informed of the new move. He brought his managers together during the night and they determined to stick by their guns.

Former Senator W. Murray Crane was advised early of the plan. He was non-committal and seemed inclined to await developments.

Arguments used by backers of the compromise were that Harding had a good record, was not involved materially in the senatorial campaign expenditures inquiry, and had the confidence of conservative and progressive interests.

Conferences between leaders of all factions looking to a nomination today began at many hotels and clubs immediately after adjournment yesterday. They were still going when the sun brightened Lake Michigan. The outcome still was in the depth of turbulent political waves.

Harding Visits Johnson

Negotiations between faction leaders followed separate group councils. They culminated in the call of Senator Harding upon Senator Johnson. Not only many influential party stalwarts felt that the triangular deadlock between the "big three" offered little hope of an early nomination that insured party unity did the Harding movement make progress.

Few important changes were expected in today's first ballot. It was expected the New York delegation would turn to other candidates the few votes remaining at the close yesterday for Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler.

Wood and Lowden Claim Gains

Gains in New York for both Wood and Lowden were claimed by their managers. They also expected further divided gains from Oregon, Missouri, Delaware, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, North Dakota and possibly Michigan and Nebraska. Friends of both candidates were hopeful that today's lineup would put one of the two "over the top," while Johnson workers also expressed confidence of a "break" to the Californian.

Senator Harding's friends and other leaders not closely associated with the Ohioan, but interested primarily in a "harmony" ticket, developed the Harding movement. Many leaders were sounded out on all dark horses, with Senator Harding apparently securing the greatest support.

Just when and how a "break" to Harding might be launched remained for discussion at breakfast table councils this morning.

Wood's Manager Talks

Frank H. Hitchcock, field marshal of the Wood forces, said:

"The Wood delegates will stick. On the first ballot today, we will have a decided gain. I am greatly encouraged. I have been informed about the conferences of leaders, opposed to Wood and that they have been trying to centre upon a dark horse candidate."

The main difficulty, it seems, has been the refusal of minor candidates to sacrifice their opportunities until they can receive reasonable assurances that their votes will furnish the necessary majority to some candidate who can win.

Under these circumstances, no one of them is willing to retire, for each feels that the pledges to him may supply the nucleus for success, if a deadlock between those now leading becomes an established fact. Chief among these are Harding, Sprout and Coolidge.

No one has been able to account for the Johnson vote. The only indication came from Senator Borah, who said neither Wood nor Lowden should receive the nomination.

BORAH WILL BOLT LOWDEN OR WOOD

CHICAGO, June 12.—Senator Borah of Idaho, one of Senator Johnson's most ardent supporters, announced last night that he could not support either Lowden or Wood.

"If either of them is nominated," he declared, "the issue before the American people will not be on the platform of the party—it will be on the issue of the corruption of the American people."

Senator Borah expressed his views at a public meeting of Johnson delegates.

TWO ILLINOIS G. O. P. DELEGATES RESIGN

CHICAGO, June 12.—Mayor Thompson of Chicago, resigned as delegate-at-large for Illinois. He gave as his reason that the state convention had instructed him to vote for Lowden. He said that he believed that if Lowden's campaign expenses had been known, neither the primary nor the state convention would have endorsed him.

Samuel A. Ettelson, also one of the delegates-at-large, presented his resignation. They presented a joint statement of their reasons to the chairman of the Illinois delegation. Both referred to the Lowden campaign expenditures.

Next Friday night, fireworks, will be given, a good big generous display. Dancing every night, too, and a good time always.

Figures Show Tremendous Growth of Auto Industry

Set down, hold tight to your chair and get ready to believe the incredible. For here come "Facts and Figures" compiled annually by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce—enough to make a fellow dizzy at the thought of them and have him realize what a small part the individual plays in this motor-scarred world.

Your automobile is only one out of 6,299,348 now in the United States. That excludes the trucks, which make the total number of motor vehicles in the country 7,558,848. Think of them lined up five feet apart, along the equator, and you will have a complete ring of motor cars around the earth.

Or figuring another way—now hold tight—at a conservative average motor car mileage of 3000, the total mileage is 22,667,544,000 annually which multiplied by an average of three passengers means a total passenger mileage of—whew!—68,002,632,000 miles. What are your mere Stutz tours to this?

During 1938 alone, manufacturers produced 1,657,452 passenger cars and 118,364 trucks. The value of this output is placed at $1,385,112,546. And this amount, says "Facts and Figures," is equal to one-third the money in circulation in the United States at the end of 1938, or double the amount of gold in the United States treasury at that time.

Adding the cost to wholesalers of motor vehicle parts, tires and accessories, you have the astounding volume of $3,166,534,534 in total output for 1938. Connected with this is gasoline. Of the 77 million barrels produced in 1938, 52 million were consumed by motor vehicles.

And, in passing, tires produced last year amounted to 33,000,000. After playing with these figures, one tire manufacturer has calculated the total mileage for the year at 99,000,000,000 miles—enough to make 195,000 round trips between the earth and the moon!

So the city folk may not swell their heads too much about their part in these big figures, let it be known that one-third of all automobile owners in the country are farmers. In proportion to the population, the farms of Iowa and Nebraska compete with the fruit valleys of California for the greatest number of cars.

PARADISE AT HAND FOR MOTORISTS

Paradise, for the motorist, is in sight at last! Paradise, where no breakdowns occur and where your machine will run practically on nothing.

The latter is almost within the grasp of the motor world. For a noted chemist has invented a method to produce liquid hydrogen cheaply. What interests auto drivers is that one gallon of this fuel, says the scientist, is enough to run an automobile 250 miles!

PERHAPS THIS WILL LESSEN ACCIDENTS

"Safety First" and "Danger" signs did not stop the careless from driving into accidents, the Auto club of Southern California found. So its members hit upon the novel scheme of presenting the drivers with the plain facts. Signs like this were put up at dangerous intersections, with the result that those were noted where the others having become commonplace slogans, were passed by unobserved. Now the plain facts are being put up within the city park limits.

To Repair Radiator

In case of a leak in a honey-comb radiator, get a bolt longer than the depth of the radiator and fine enough to go through the hole. In the honey-comb, put it where the leak is, place a rubber washer on each end and a steel washer over these and tighten the nut on the bolt tight enough to stop the leak.

Getting Out of a Rut

When a rear wheel is in a mud-hole so that it spins, apply the emergency brake gently. This will give enough resistance to the spinning wheel to let the other wheel pull the car out. The decrease in engine speed because of the brake pressure can be made up by opening the throttle a little.

COLLECTS TIPS TO HELP WEEK-ENDERS

Week-enders and campers who do not care to spend their vacation alongside some road underneath their automobiles, may find considerable help in the advice of A. L. Westgard, field representative of the Amn. Auto Assn.

representative of the Amn. Auto Assn. Having gone through various experiences and met all sorts of difficulties on the road, he has compiled the lessons he has learned for uninitiated motorists.

"Before starting on a motor camping tour," says Westgard, look over the tool box. His list includes various kinds of wrenches, pliers, a hammer, screw drivers, files, wire, nuts, bolts, cotter pins, tire valves, a tire pressure gauge, spark plugs, rim lugs, talcum powder, tape, an extra valve and spring, a grease gun and an extra spring clip and bolts.

Besides these extras there should be a spare tire or two, some extra tubes carefully packed in burlap to keep from chafing, puncture and blow-out patches and inner boots; a tire pump, a jack and small plank to be used as a base on soft ground; Weed chains and a few extra cross chains; a tow-rope; a collapsible canvas bucket and a five-gallon water bag; an upper and lower rubber hose connection for the radiator, with clamps; a box of cup grease and a can of lubricating oil.

With the car in good working order, all parts lubricated and the battery fully charged, everything is ready for the trip. For the time the tourist is driving, Westgard has compiled the following tips that lend toward a pleasant tour:

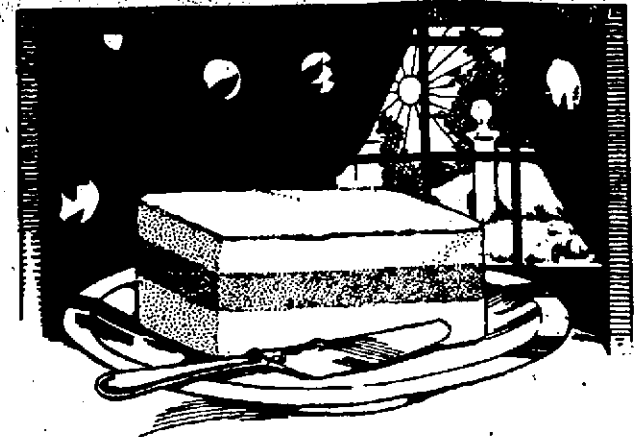

"Don't overload the car. Distribute the weight to equalize the springs. Use soft water for radiator. Watch the brakes, making prompt adjustments to take up wear and renew brake lining when worn. Do not strain the motor unnecessarily. Watch the alignment of the wheels. Keep the battery charged. Repair small tire cuts promptly. Sand blisters and mud boils are due to underinflation. Do not drive in ruts; it wears out the sides of the casings. Do not let oil or grease remain on the casings. Do not adjust chains too tightly; allow them to creep. Finally, keep tires well inflated and make tests every morning.

"When stuck in a mudhole or on a sandy stretch, do not speed up the engine and 'jump' the clutch. This will only cause the wheels to spin and the car to sink deeper. Open the throttle only far enough to keep the engine from stalling and engage the clutch slowly. The chances are this method will procure traction."

MEDAL FOR CARUSO

HAVANA, June 11.—Enrico Caruso, the tenor, was presented a gold medal commemorative of his visit to Havana at the close of his engagement here tonight.

The island of Java is of about the same area as Ireland, but its population is six times greater.

AUTO TALK

A Roosevelt road, lined with memorial trees, is the latest plan for the perpetuation of the former president's memory. It has been proposed by Chas. L. Pack, president of the American Forestry association, who has also sought the co-operation of automobile associations.

The Pennsylvania state constabulary are coming off their fine horses, and will hereafter police the state on motorcycles. This became known when a contract was recently awarded to a motorcycle manufacturer for 70 of his latest model machines.

Fully 25 per cent. of those applying for licenses as automobile operators in New York are being rejected by the examiners. The examination is considered one of the strictest in the country.

When you're bumping over a particularly rough and rutty road, think what a worse time you'd have down in Chile. Complete description of the highways there are contained in this short sentence—"The roads are very hard on tires."

Southern states show the largest proportionate gain in automobile registration this year. This, it is said, is due to the fact that there have been heavy demands for cotton during and since the war, which has put the south in a strong financial position and has enabled the cotton growers to use motor power for transportation.

New Jersey motorists have gained a point against the overloaded truck that is an extra burden on the roads. The highway commission has decided to place a fine on all trucks passing through the state overloaded. Scales will be ready on the different highways and when a passing truck is believed to be carrying more weight than allowed by license, it will be weighed. If overweighted, a fine will be imposed.

HERE'S PROOF THAT AUTO SAVES LIVES

Credit the motor car with being a rural life saver. Yes, the death rate in the country districts is due for a fall, since more and more physicians are climbing into automobiles to reach more patients faster than ever.

Two-thirds of the 150,000 physicians in the United States, according to the national automobile chamber of commerce, own automobiles. And more than 50 per cent. of the country doctors visit their clients in motor cars.

When the horse and buggy was the best means of transportation, the doctor spent a longer time travelling and could visit only a small number of patients. Result—a higher death rate on the farms than in cities. Now that most country physicians have taken to automobiles, it is believed the death rate will decrease considerably.

Attempt to Kill Egyptian Premier

CAIRO, June 12.—An unsuccessful attempt was made this morning to assassinate the Egyptian premier by means of a bomb.

Today's attempt to assassinate the Egyptian premier, Yusef Wahba Pasha, is the second within six months. On December 15, 1938, an attack was made while the premier was driving to the ministry, his assailant, Arian Yusuf Haah, was sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment.

Four Deaths, Five Prostrations in Chicago

Why the Yale Costs less to use

THE Yale Bicycle is built for long service—for hard, steady, every-day riding. That's why the Yale costs less to use—why it pays to buy a Yale.

Yale Bicycles have many points and features of superiority. At every point of stress or strain or wear, the Yale is extra-reinforced, making it the real bicycle for service. More drop forgings are used in the Yale than in other bicycles. Drop forgings cost more than stampings or castings, but wear longer and serve better. Get the Yale when you buy your bicycle. Any bicycle will save you time and save you steps. But the Yale will save you the most! Let us show the fine, new Yale models now in stock—for men, women, boys and girls.
